Aurelle

A private-aviation website for people whose time is the scarcest thing they own.

Role

Research, UX, UI, motion

Year

2026

(00) Project

A private-jet operator for people who measure luxury in minutes saved.

Client
Aurelle, concept brand

Role
UX research, UI, motion, front-end prototype

Audience
Principals and the assistants who book for them

Deliverables
Strategy, system, 10 pages, brand toolkit

Platforms
Desktop, tablet, phone, social

Contents

01 The brief 05

02 Research 09

03 Strategy 14

04 Identity & system 19

05 Iterations 25

06 The product 27

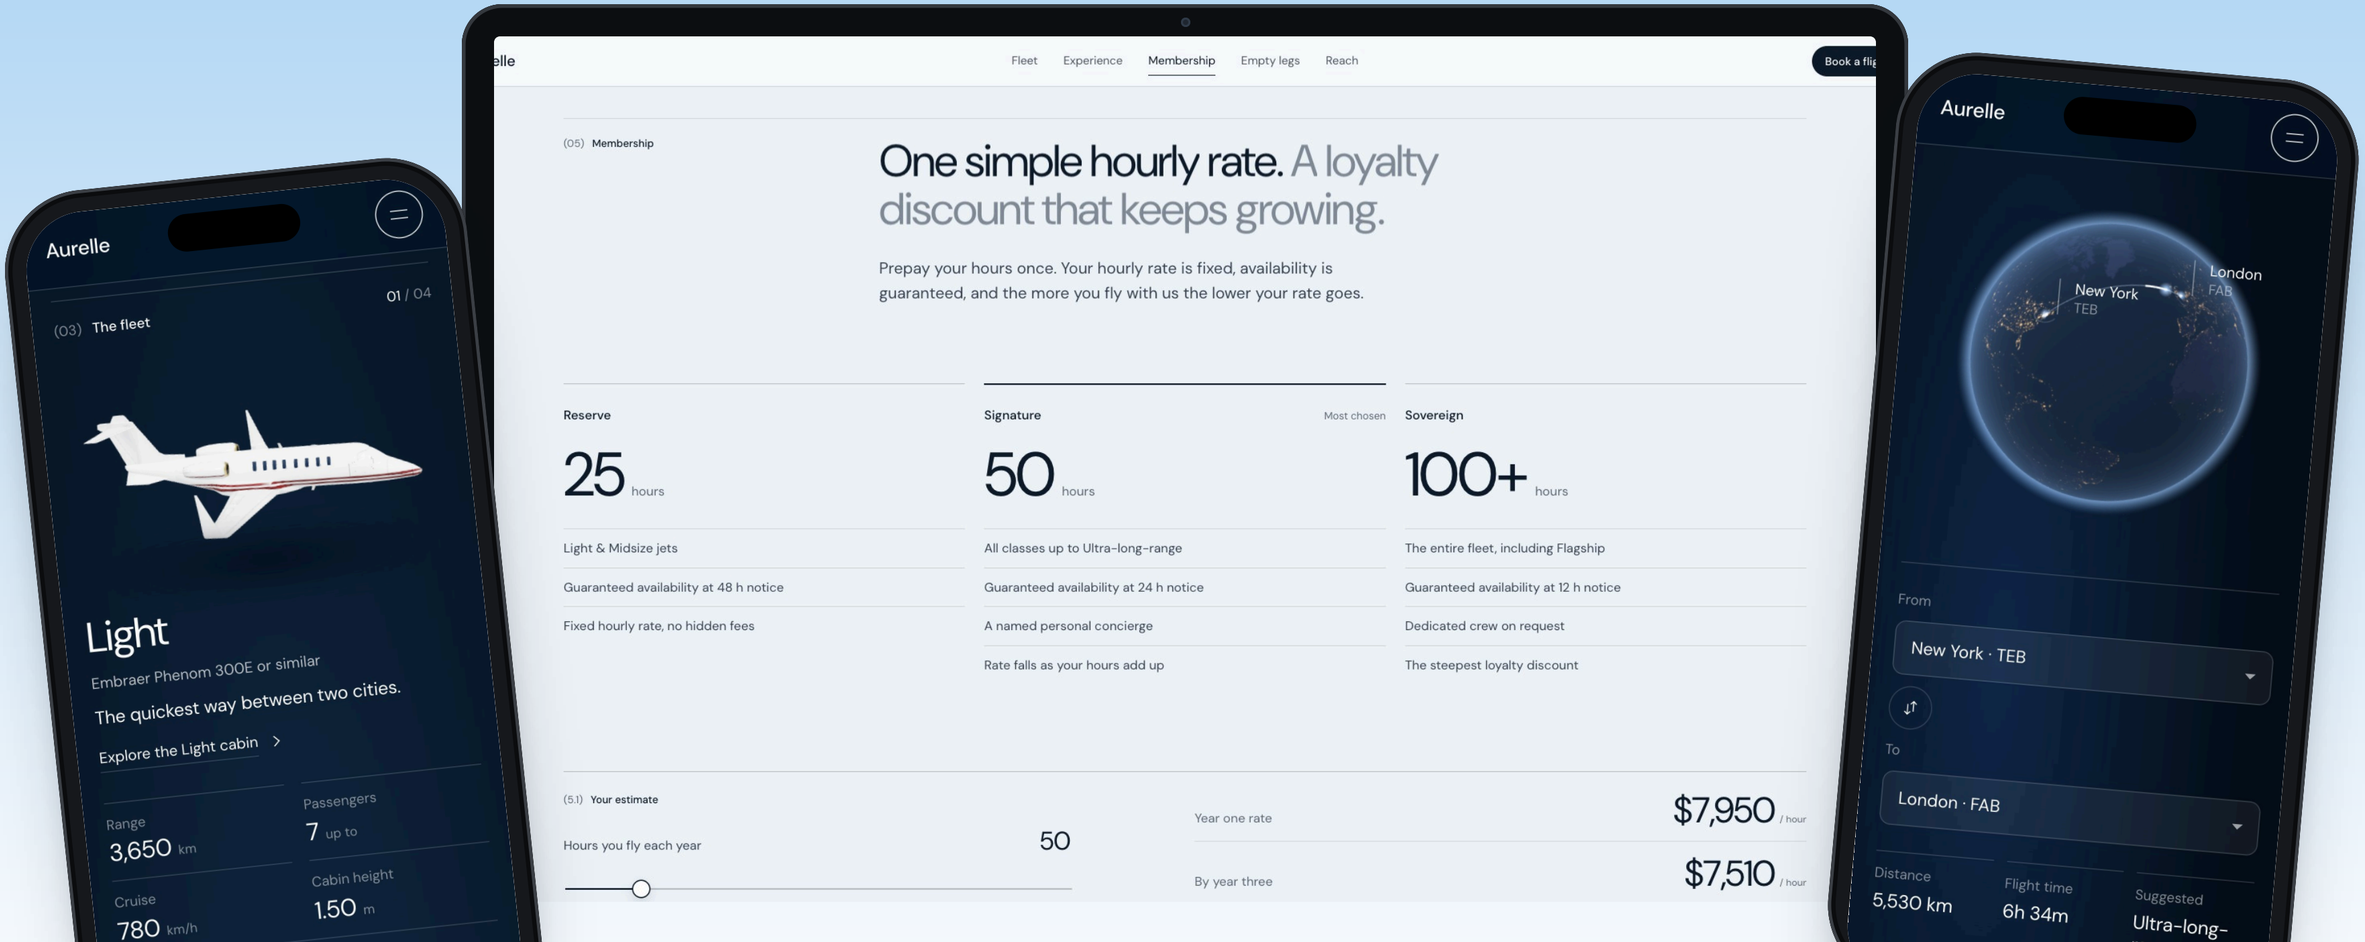
07 Motion 40

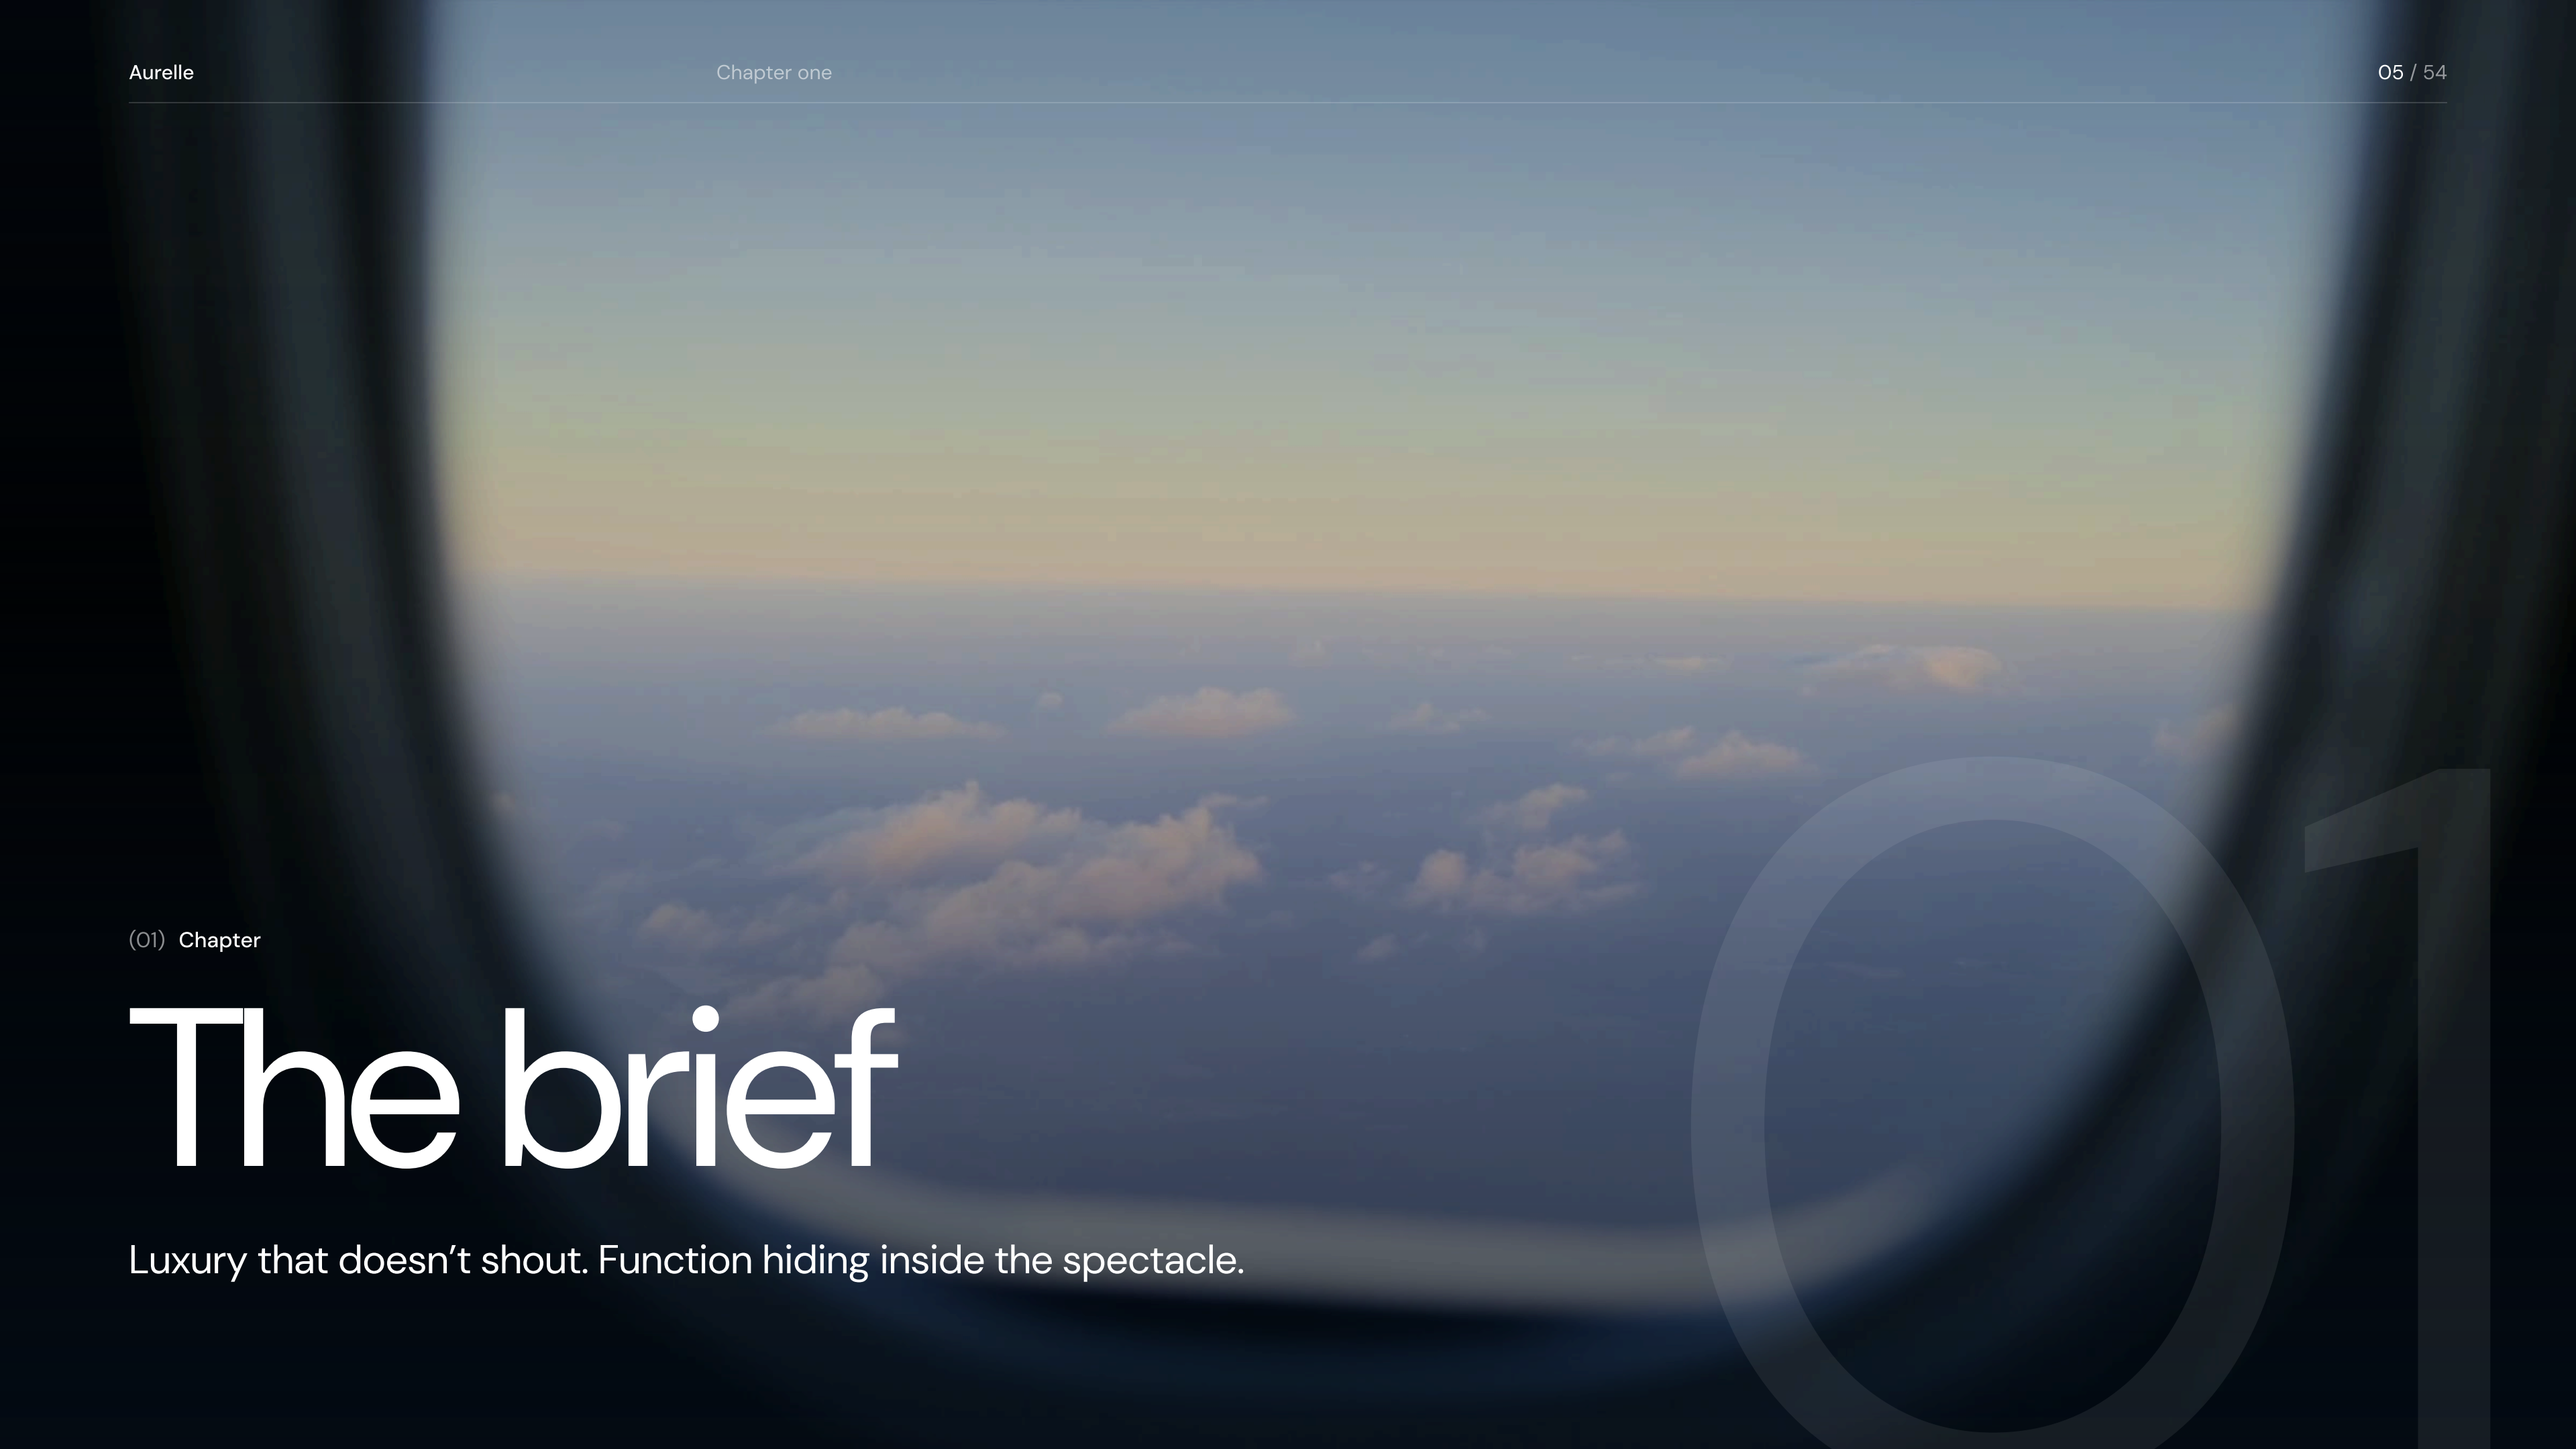
08 Brand in the world 42

09 Quality & outcome 52

(00) At a glance

Ten pages, one story. Spectacle where it earns its place, silence everywhere else.





(01) Chapter

The brief

Luxury that doesn’t shout. Function hiding inside the spectacle.

(1.1) What was asked

“They don’t show too much. But whatever they show really works for the customer.”

The client on Apple, Nike and American Express as the benchmark

Jesko Jets

Cinematic, scroll-led storytelling and one aircraft at a time.

“Let’s Fly” concept

Airy minimalism: huge type, one image, almost nothing else.

Apple product pages

Restraint: one idea per screen, motion that explains.

(1.2) The real problem

Three tensions every decision had to resolve.

Spectacle × speed

Immersive 3D and film on a phone, without ever feeling slow. Spectacle lives in a few scenes; everything else is type and space.

Mystery × price

“If you have to ask” loses the aspirant buyer. Indicative estimates, clearly labelled, never a firm promise.

Beauty × function

Every beautiful part does a job: the globe plans routes, the fleet compares aircraft, membership calculates.

(1.3) Feasibility

Feasible. As a website.

The business is the hard part, so the site is honest about it.

$35B+

Global private aviation a year; demand stayed high after 2020.

~400k

People worth over $30M: a small audience that buys on trust and referral.

0

Instant bookings. Positioning, crew and permits mean a human confirms every quote.

190+

Countries is honest. “Anywhere” is not: runways, permits and sanctions apply.

(02) Chapter

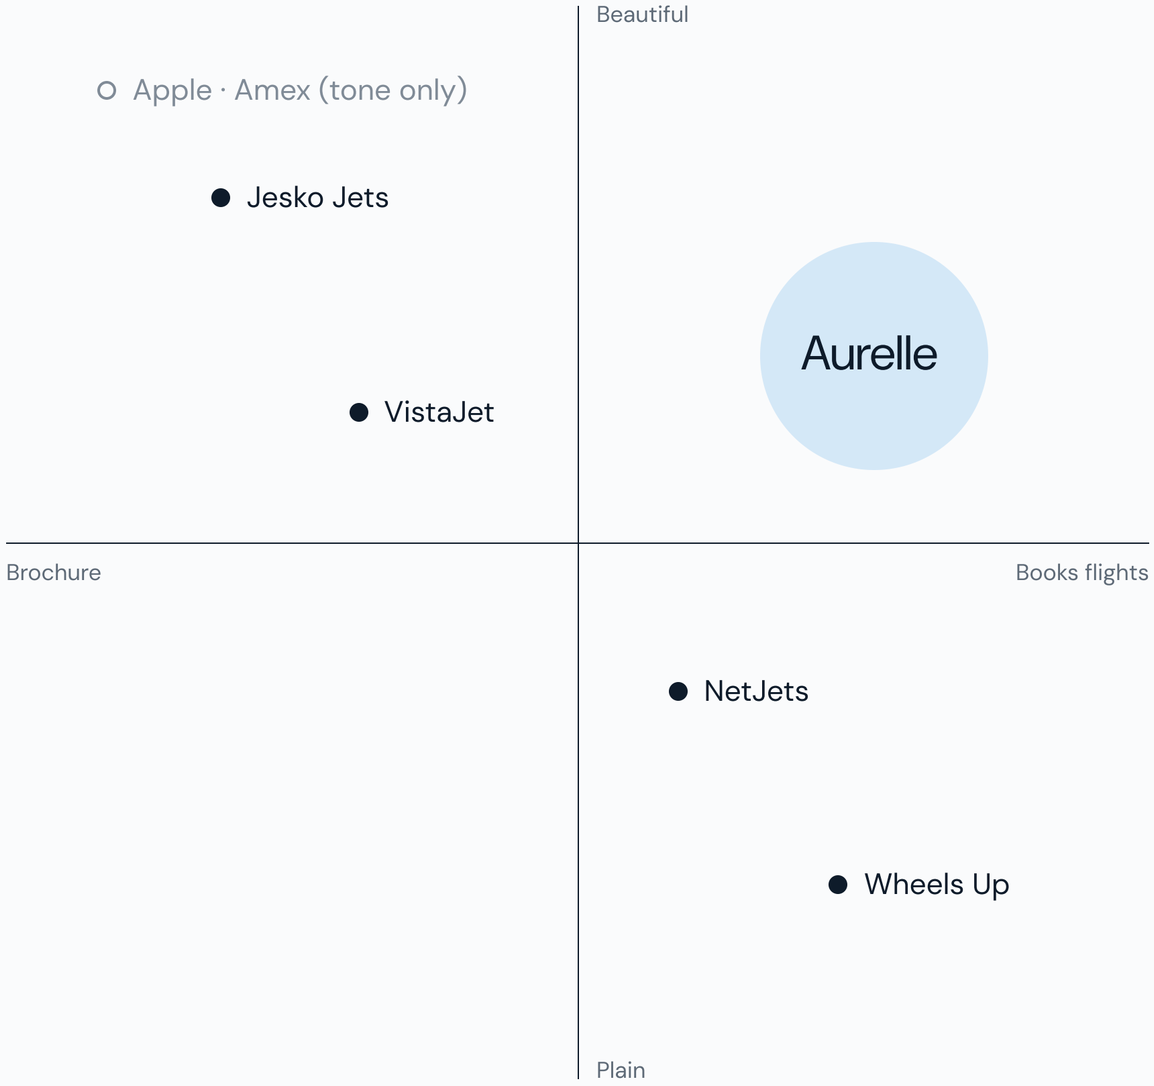
Research

Five competitors, three people, six insights that changed the design.

(2.1) Competitor audit

Everyone is beautiful or useful. Rarely both.

Five sites mapped by how they look and how much they help someone book. The empty corner is the opportunity.

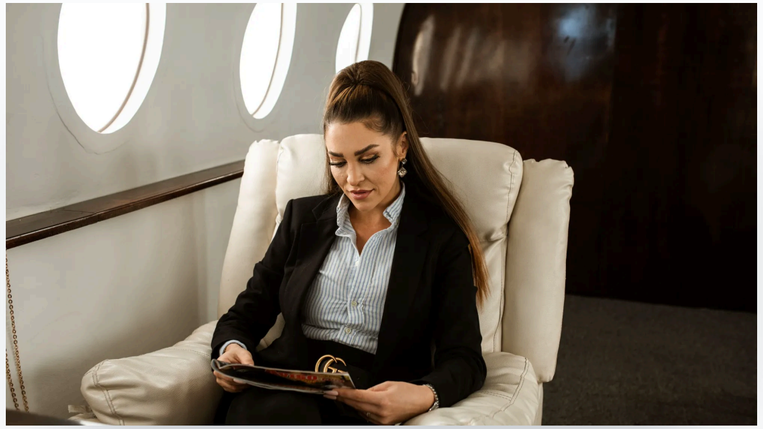


(2.2) The gap

Jesko’s restraint
+ a real booking path
+ a membership that rewards loyalty
= Aurelle.

(2.3) Personas

One decides. One books. One is deciding whether to start.



01 · The Principal · Founder · 150–250 h a year

Elena, 54

“Is this my level?”

Visits once, on a phone, and judges the brand in about 20 seconds.

02 · The Gatekeeper · Chief of staff

Marcus, 36

“Who answers at 3 a.m.?”

Needs a firm quote fast, a human on call and the paperwork handled.

03 · The Aspirant · Tech executive · 2–4 trips

Ryan, 41

“What would it cost me?”

Compares prices, curious about a jet card, watches for empty legs.

(2.4) Insights → decisions

Six things we learned, and what each one changed.

Insight	Decision
The principal judges brand level in seconds, often on a phone	One headline and one image above the fold; the phone hero is designed, not shrunk
Assistants need the shortest route to a human	“Book a flight” in the nav at every scroll position; phone number in menu and footer
Price opacity reads as exclusive but loses the aspirant	Indicative estimates in the planner and booking; real prices on empty legs
Privacy matters more than features	Discretion is the first chapter; the form asks for the minimum
Visitors skew older, on high-end screens, in bright light	Light-first design, AA contrast, large tap targets, nothing hover-only
Motion can make people feel unwell	Every scene degrades to a still composition with reduced motion

(03) Chapter

Strategy

Decide what to leave out before deciding what to put in.

(3.1) We added

Six things that do a job.

+ A membership whose hourly rate falls the more you fly
+ An empty-legs board: the one place price can be shown openly
+ A route planner inside the 3D globe
+ A four-step quote in about sixty seconds, no account
+ A named concierge with a stated ten-minute reply
+ Discretion as a feature: NDAs, private terminals

(3.2) We left out, on purpose

Six that only add noise.

- ~~Accounts and dashboards~~
- ~~Instant card payment~~
- ~~Blog and press-logo walls~~
- ~~Champagne stock photography~~
- ~~Chatbots and pop-ups~~
- ~~Testimonials (they break discretion)~~

(3.3) Principles

01	One idea per screen	If a section needs two headlines, it is two sections.
02	Silence is a material	Whitespace is budgeted, never what is left over.
03	Motion explains	Every animation reveals hierarchy, space or cause and effect.
04	Beauty that works	The globe plans, the fleet compares, membership calculates.
05	Under-promise	No exclamation marks. No stacked superlatives.

(3.4) Sitemap

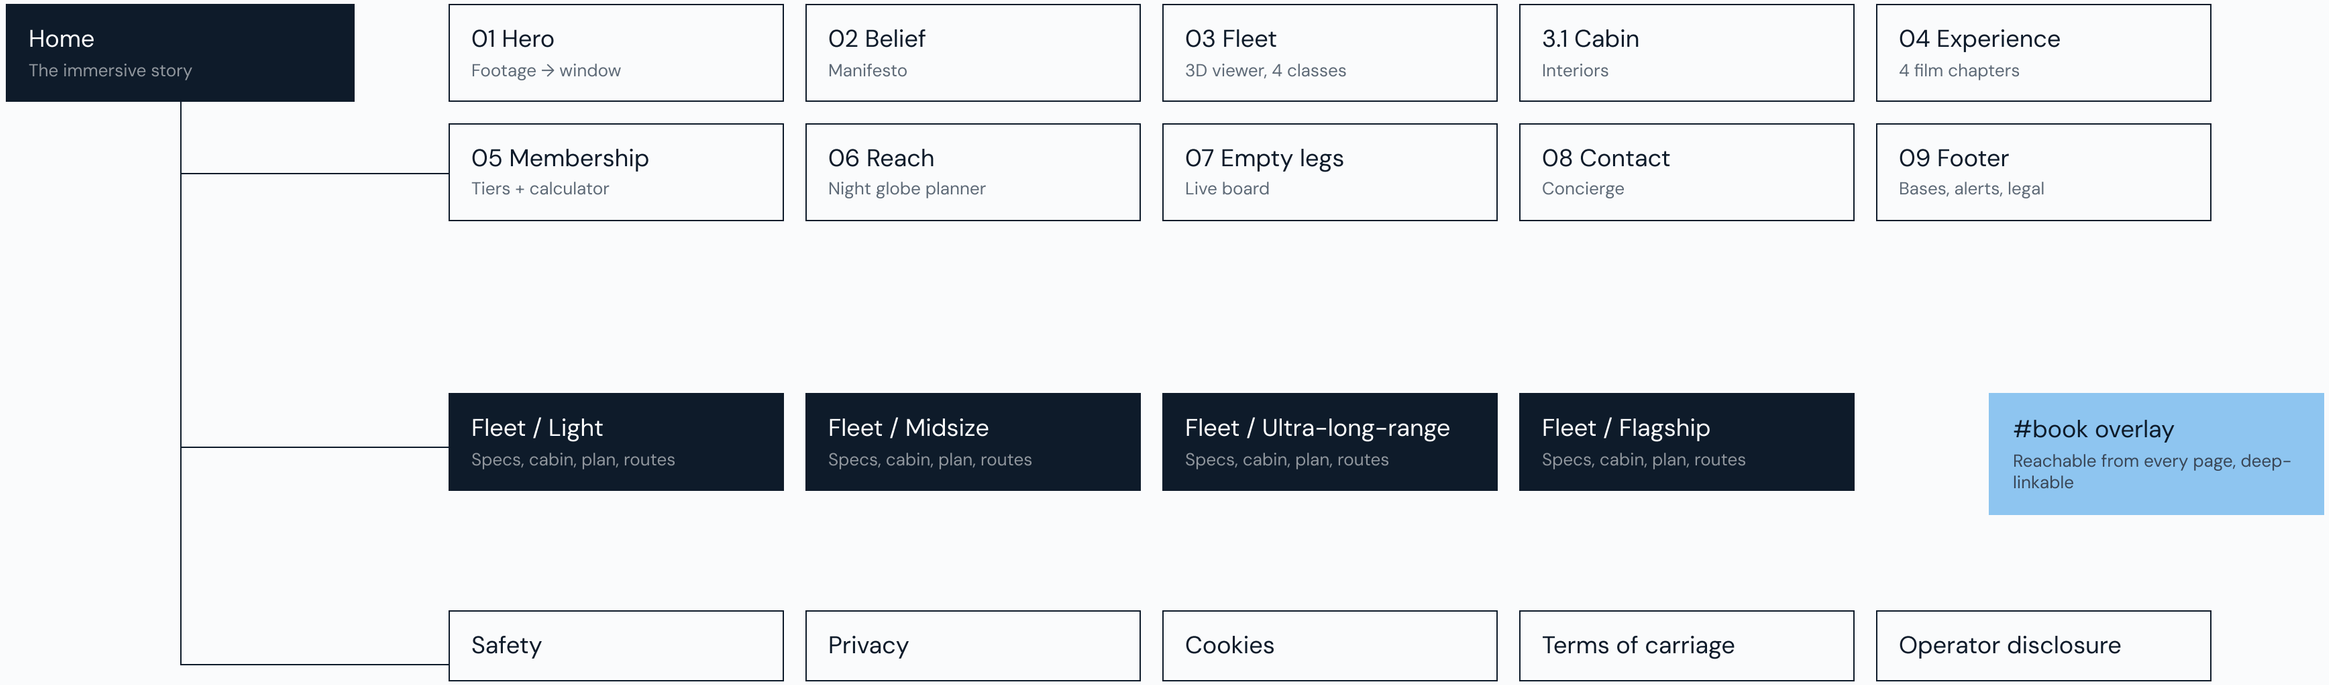
One long story, with a quote two clicks away from anywhere.



(3.5) Key journeys

Four people, four shortest paths.

Principal	Hero	Belief	Fleet	Experience	Forwards to assistant
Gatekeeper	Any page	Book a flight	Journey	Aircraft	Details	Confirmed in ~60 s
Aspirant	Hero	Membership calculator	Empty legs	Reserve, prefilled
Planner	Globe	Pick two cities	See time + class	Continue to booking

Aurelle

(04) Chapter

Identity & system

Sky and white. One typeface. A Swiss grid that never bends.

04

(4.1) Wordmark

No symbol. The name is the logo, set in DM Sans 500.

Aurelle

Clear space The cap height of the “A” on every side · minimum 64 px wide on screen

(4.2) Colour

Black and grey for words. Blue only for the sky.

Paper

#FAFBFC
Page background

Mist

#EEF3F8
Alternate sections

Grey

#808B97
Second sentences

Muted

#5E6A77
Labels · 5.3:1

Ink

#0E1B2A
Text, buttons · 16.8:1

Sky

#8EC5F0 → #2F7BC4
Data only: routes, focus

(4.3) Typography

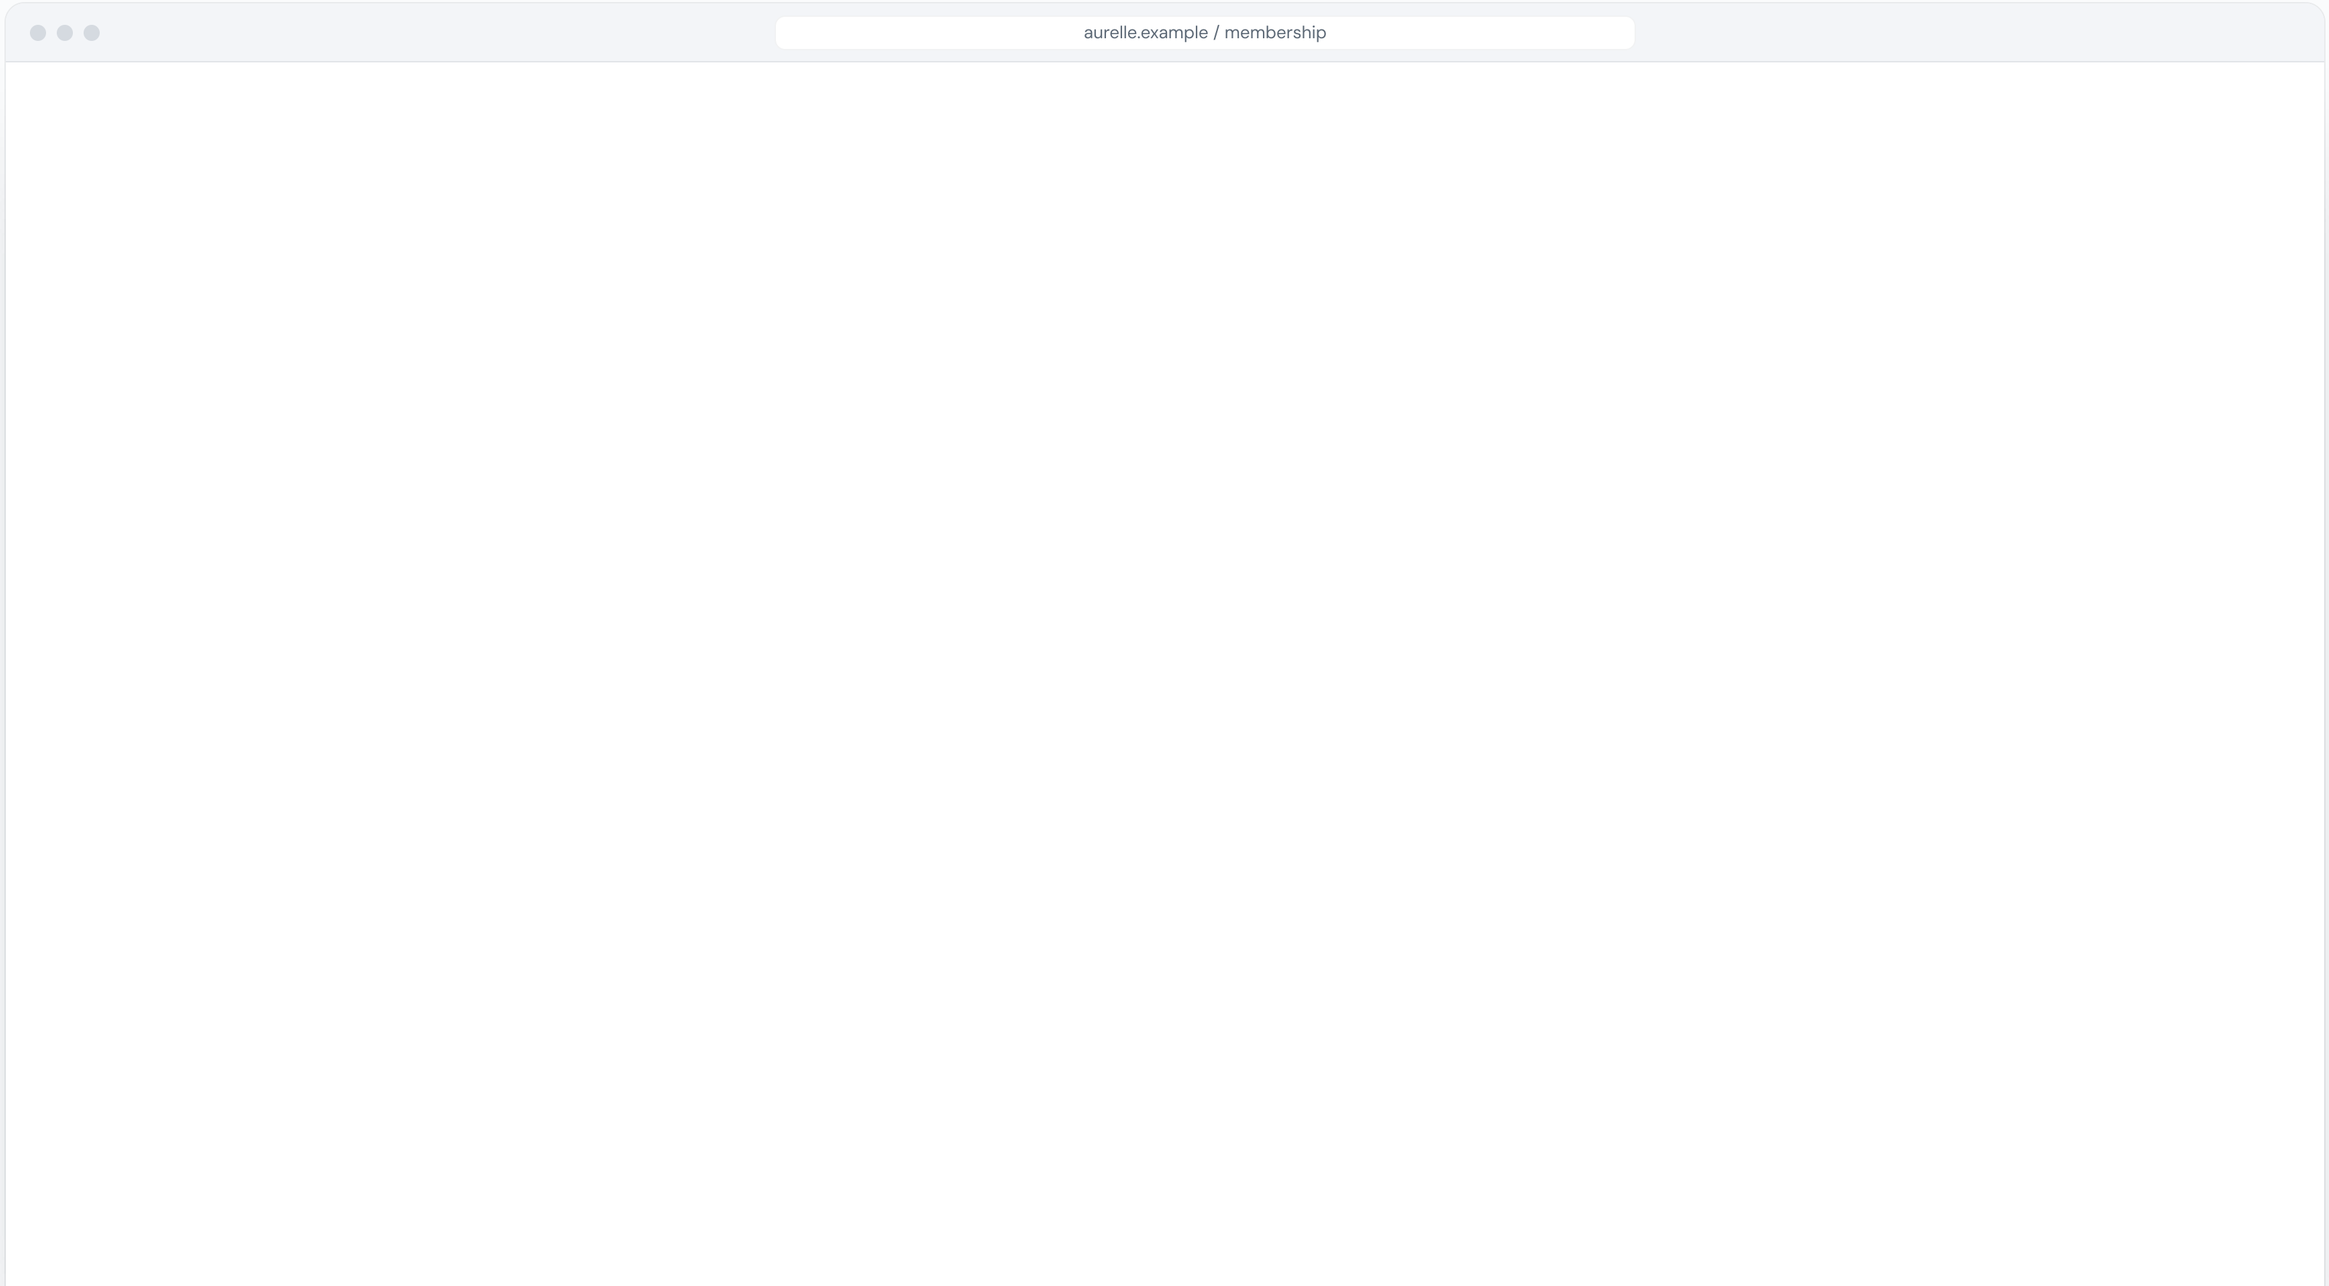
Aa

DM Sans, variable.

One family, weights 400–500, self-hosted. Natural tracking. No italics anywhere: emphasis comes from colour, not slant.

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ abcdef ghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz 0123456789 → $ ·

Style	Size / leading	Tracking
Display	3–8.8 rem / 0.98	-2.5%
Heading	2–3.5 rem / 1.08	-1.5%
Body	16.5 px / 1.6	0



aurelle.example / membership

(4.5) Components

The section header is the whole system in miniature.

1 Hairline: every idea starts on a rule

2 Headline from column 4

(05) Membership

One simple hourly rate. A loyalty discount that keeps growing.

3 Index + label, sentence case

4 Second sentence in grey

Book a flight | Explore the fleet | On dark

Pill buttons · 44–56 px

Light | Midsize | Ultra-long-range

Segmented choice

(05) Iterations · Typography

Before

Time,
returned.

Serif display, italic accents in blue. Elegant, but it read as a wedding invitation.

After

Time,
returned.

DM Sans, natural tracking, a grey second line. Calmer, more modern, easier on a phone.

(05) Feedback → response

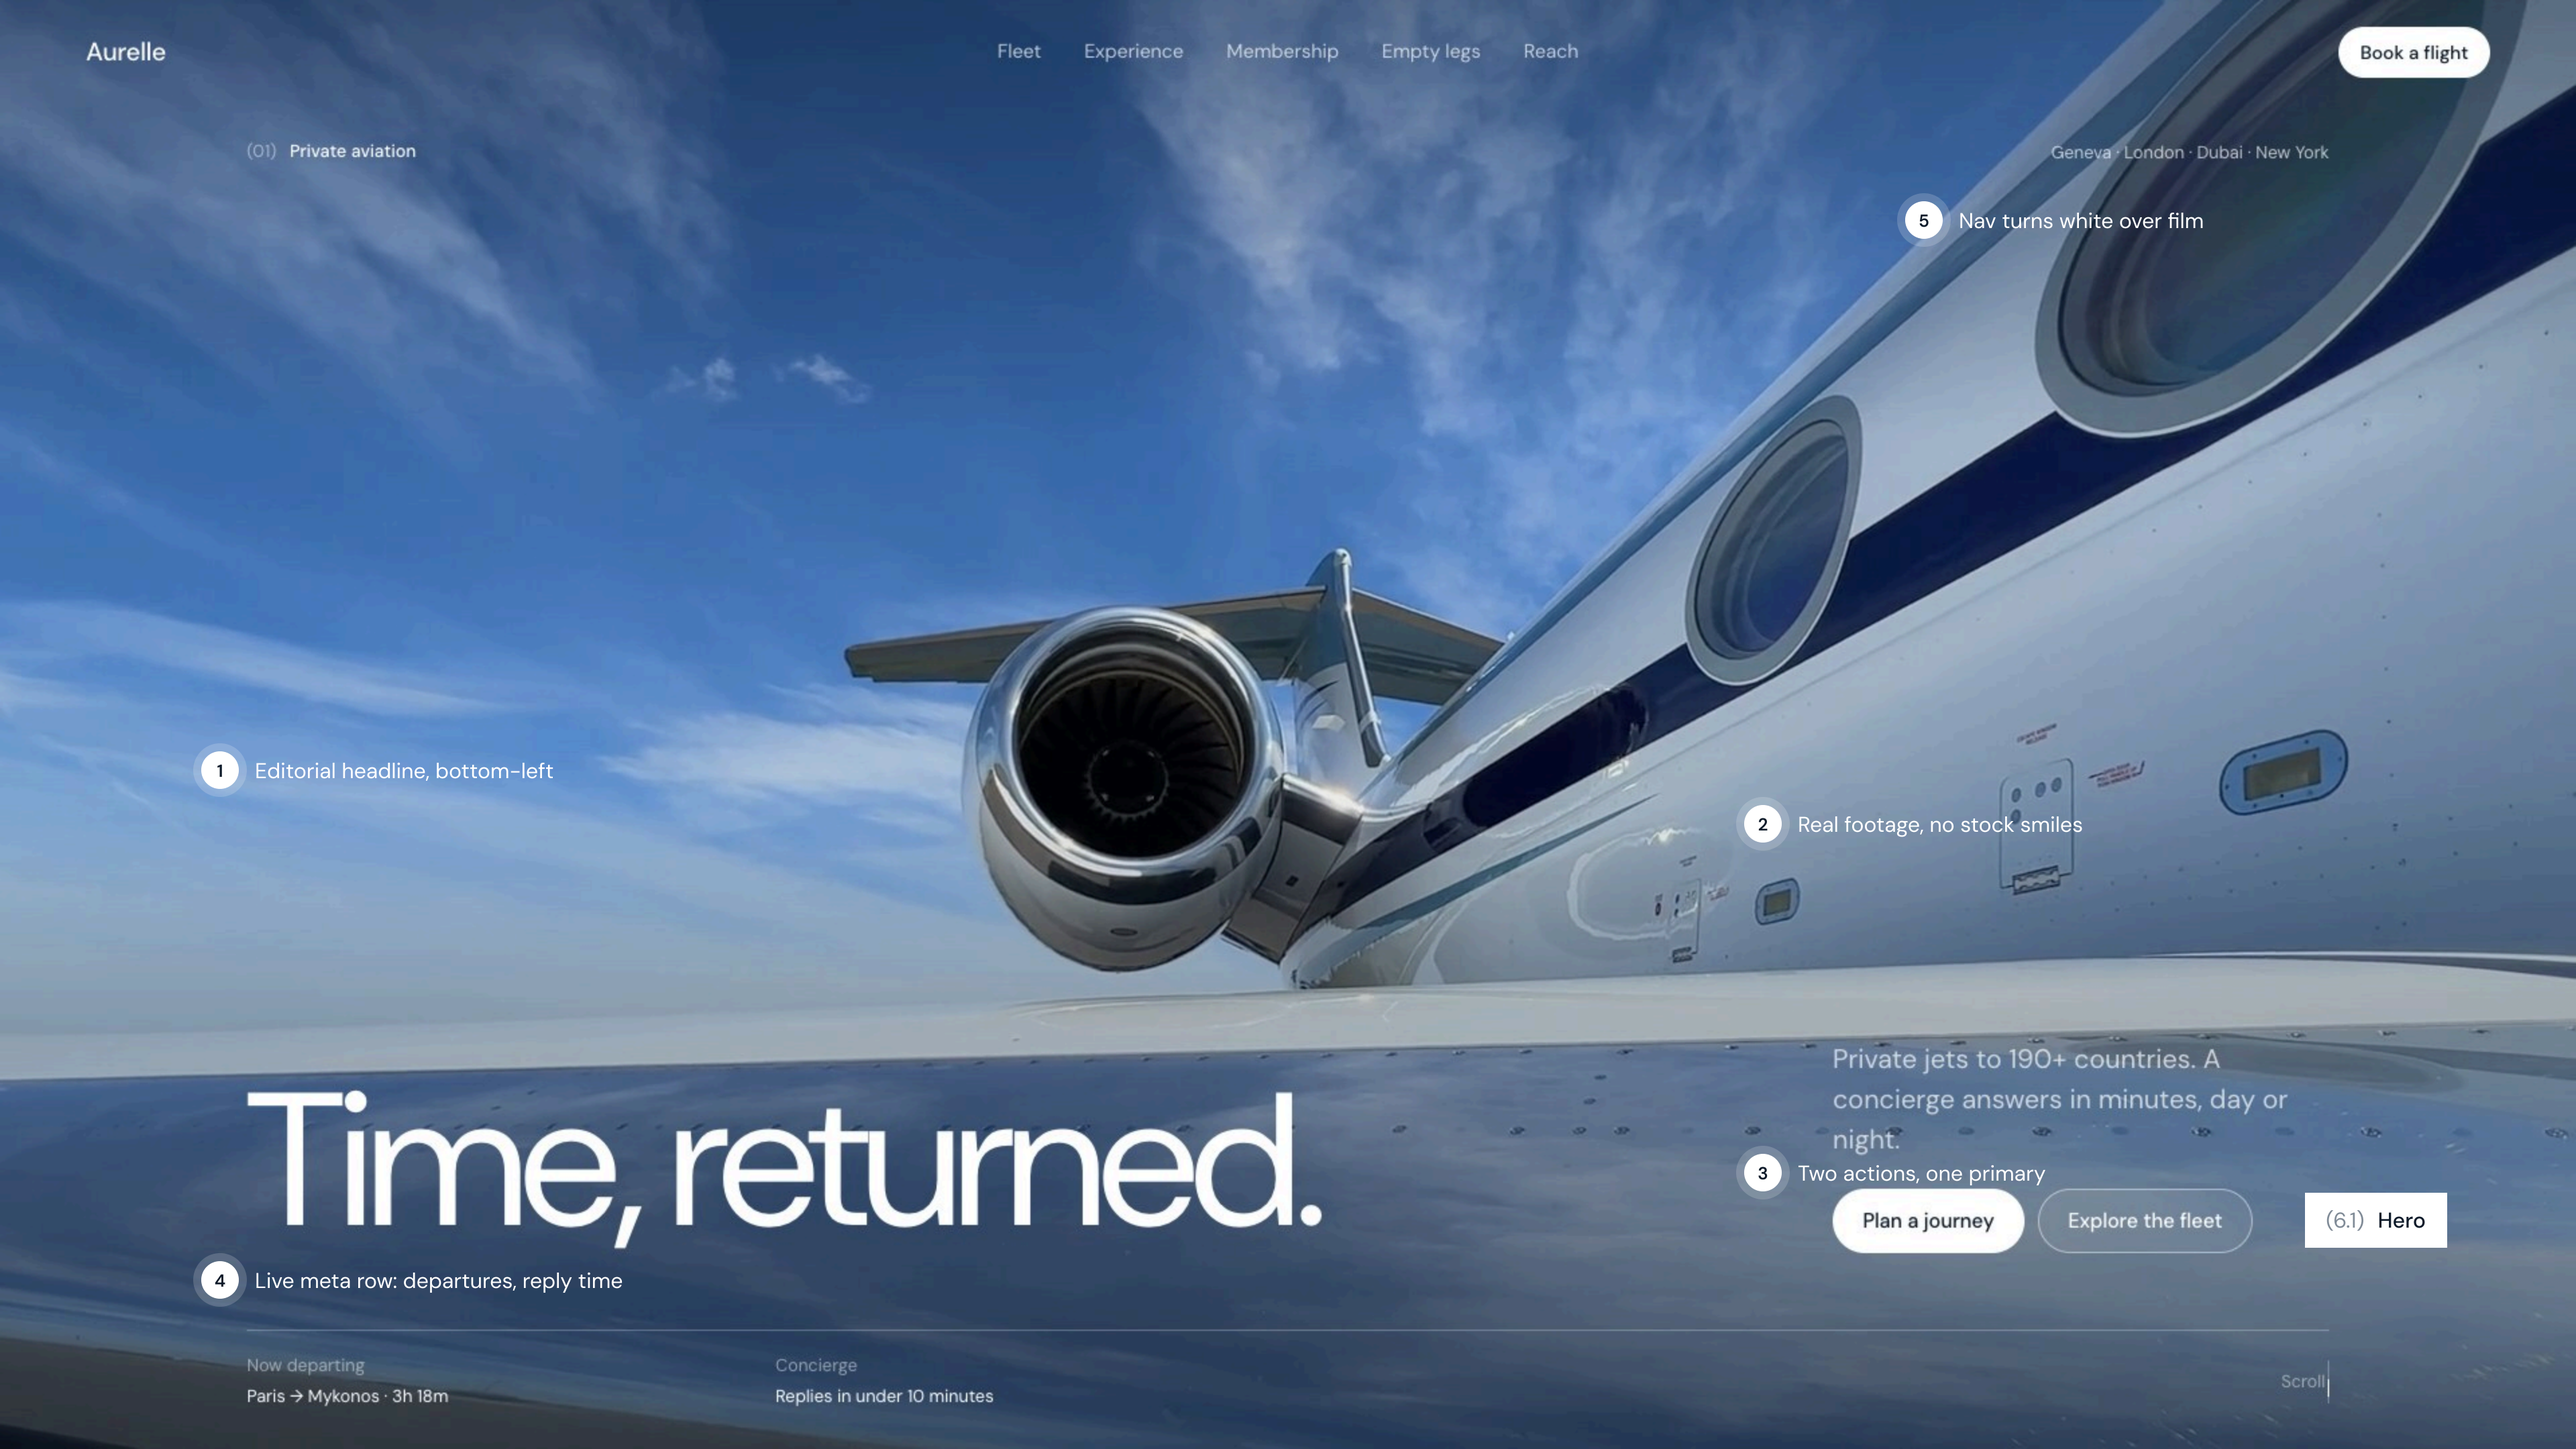
Six times the client said no. Six better answers.

#	Feedback	Response
01	“Use a serif. No, sans serif.”	DM Sans everywhere, self-hosted; type carries the luxury, not the font category
02	“Drop the dark version, make it sky and white.”	Light only; navy kept for scenes that need depth (fleet, globe, footer)
03	“No italics, no blue in the text.”	Black + grey two-tone headings; blue reserved for data and focus
04	“The cabin window looks fake and illustrative.”	Four full-screen chapters of real footage and cabin photography
05	“The black jet kills the vibe on navy.”	Same shape, re-rendered in pearl white with a texture-remap shader
06	“The globe doesn’t feel flagship.”	NASA night Earth, atmosphere, light trail and city labels on deep navy

(06) Chapter

The product

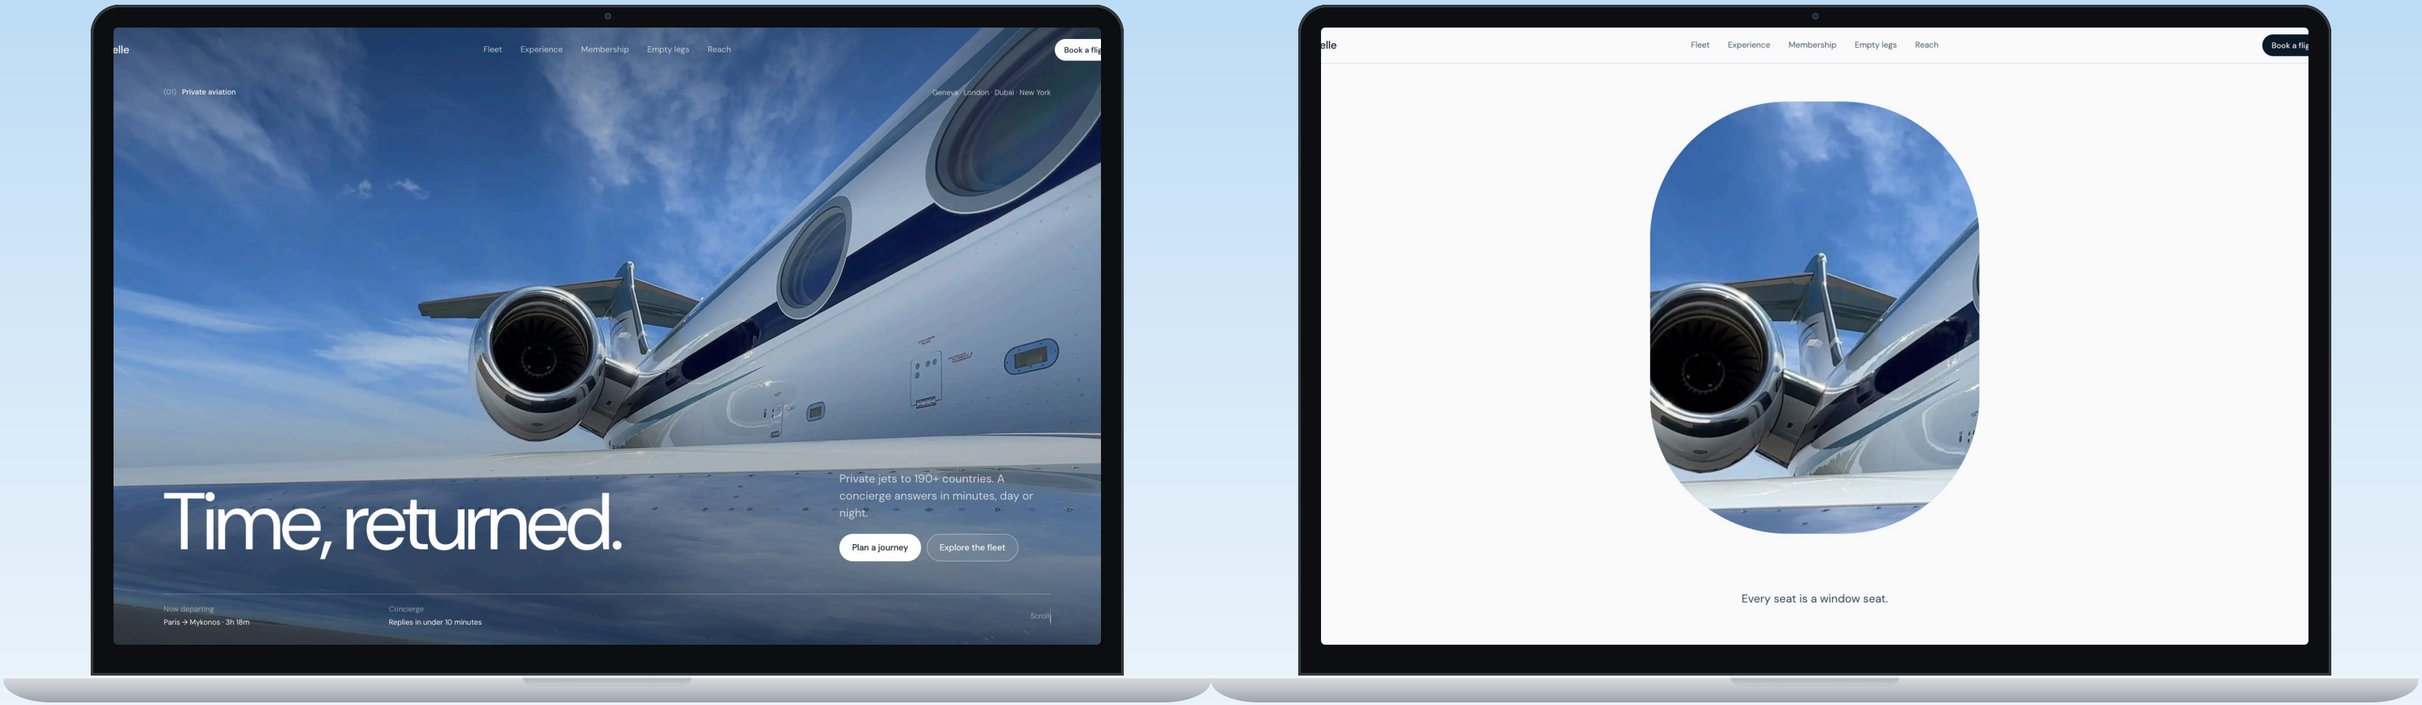
Ten pages. Eleven moments worth showing.



Aurelle
Fleet
Experience
Membership
Empty legs
Reach
Book a flight
(01) Private aviation
Geneva · London · Dubai · New York
5 Nav turns white over film
1 Editorial headline, bottom-left
2 Real footage, no stock smiles
Time, returned.
Private jets to 190+ countries. A concierge answers in minutes, day or night.
3 Two actions, one primary
Plan a journey
Explore the fleet
(6.1) Hero
4 Live meta row: departures, reply time
Now departing
Paris → Mykonos · 3h 18m
Concierge
Replies in under 10 minutes
Scroll

(6.2) Scroll moment

The footage closes into a cabin window. Every seat is a window seat.



Scroll 0% Full-bleed film

Scroll 95% Clip-path inset with a 240 px radius

(6.3) Fleet viewer

Four classes, one aircraft at a time.

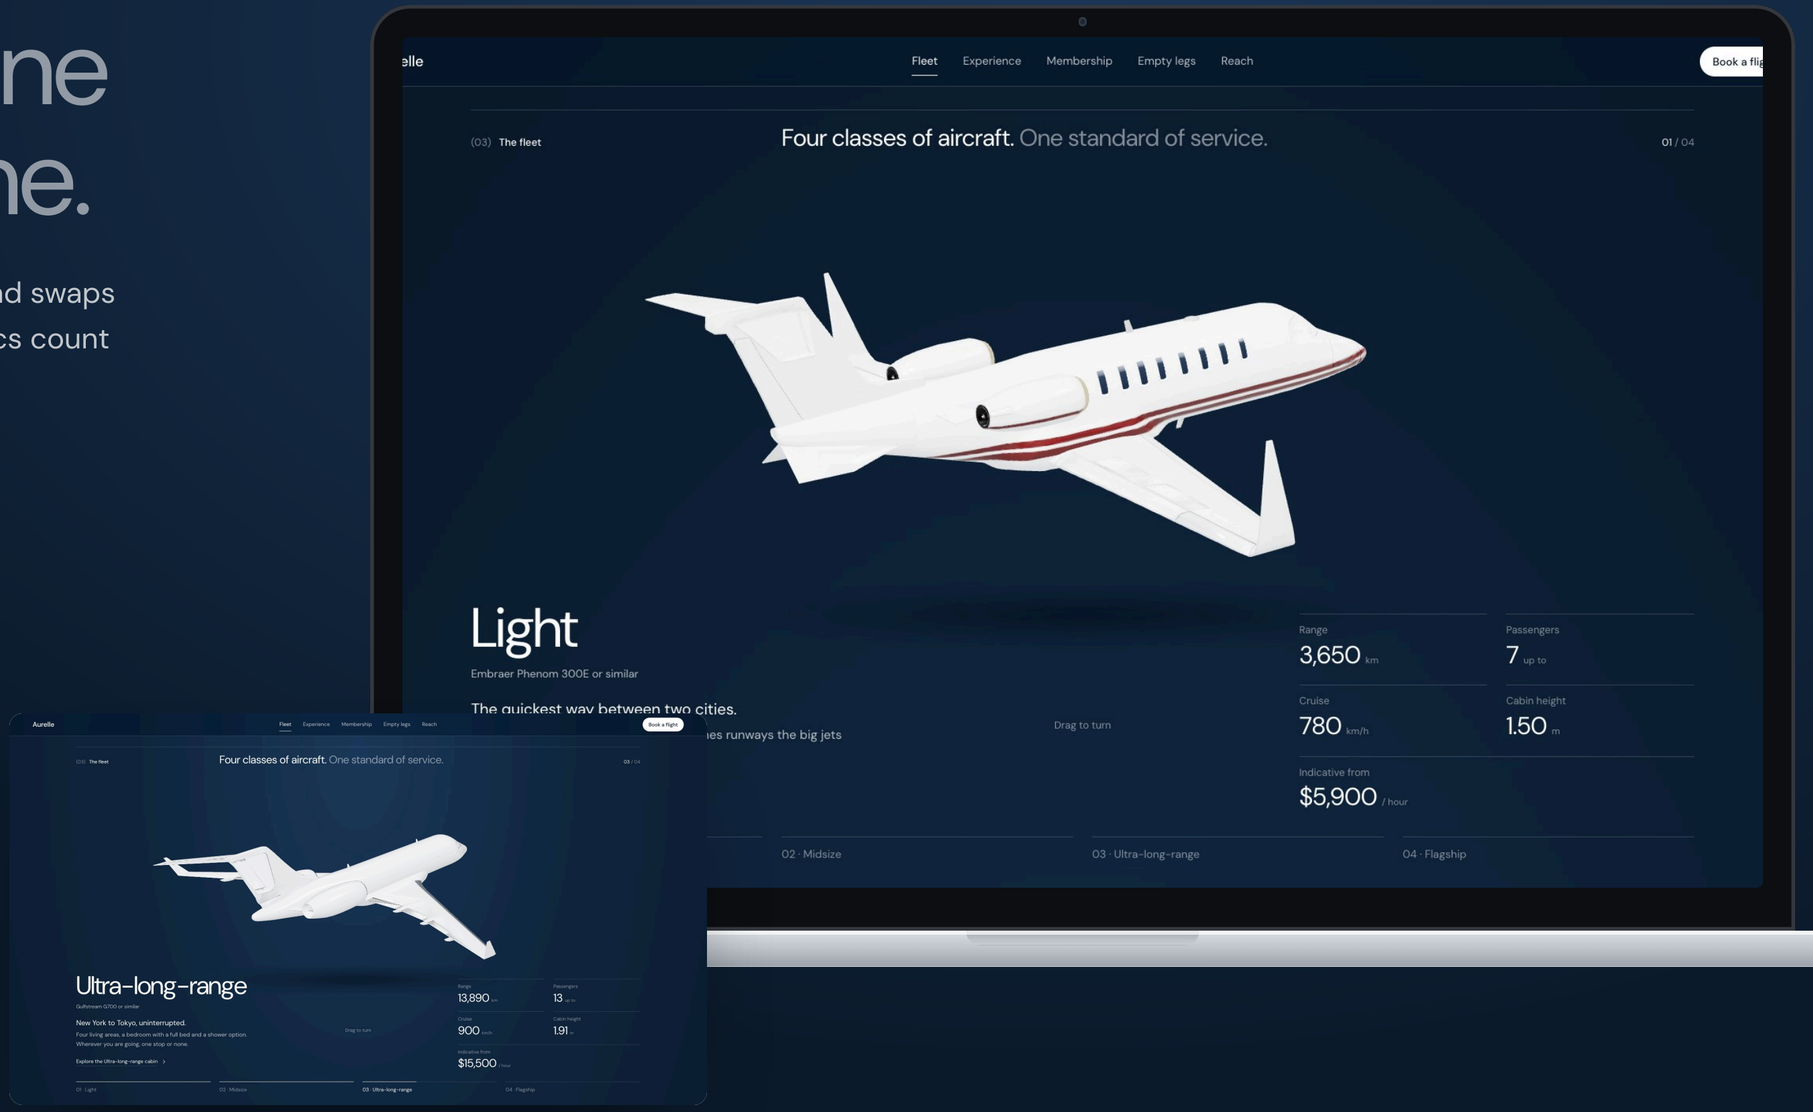
A pinned scroll scene. The jet turns, scales and swaps model as you move through the classes; specs count up beside it.

120 MB → 1.4 MB

Learjet 45, CC BY, optimised with gltf-transform

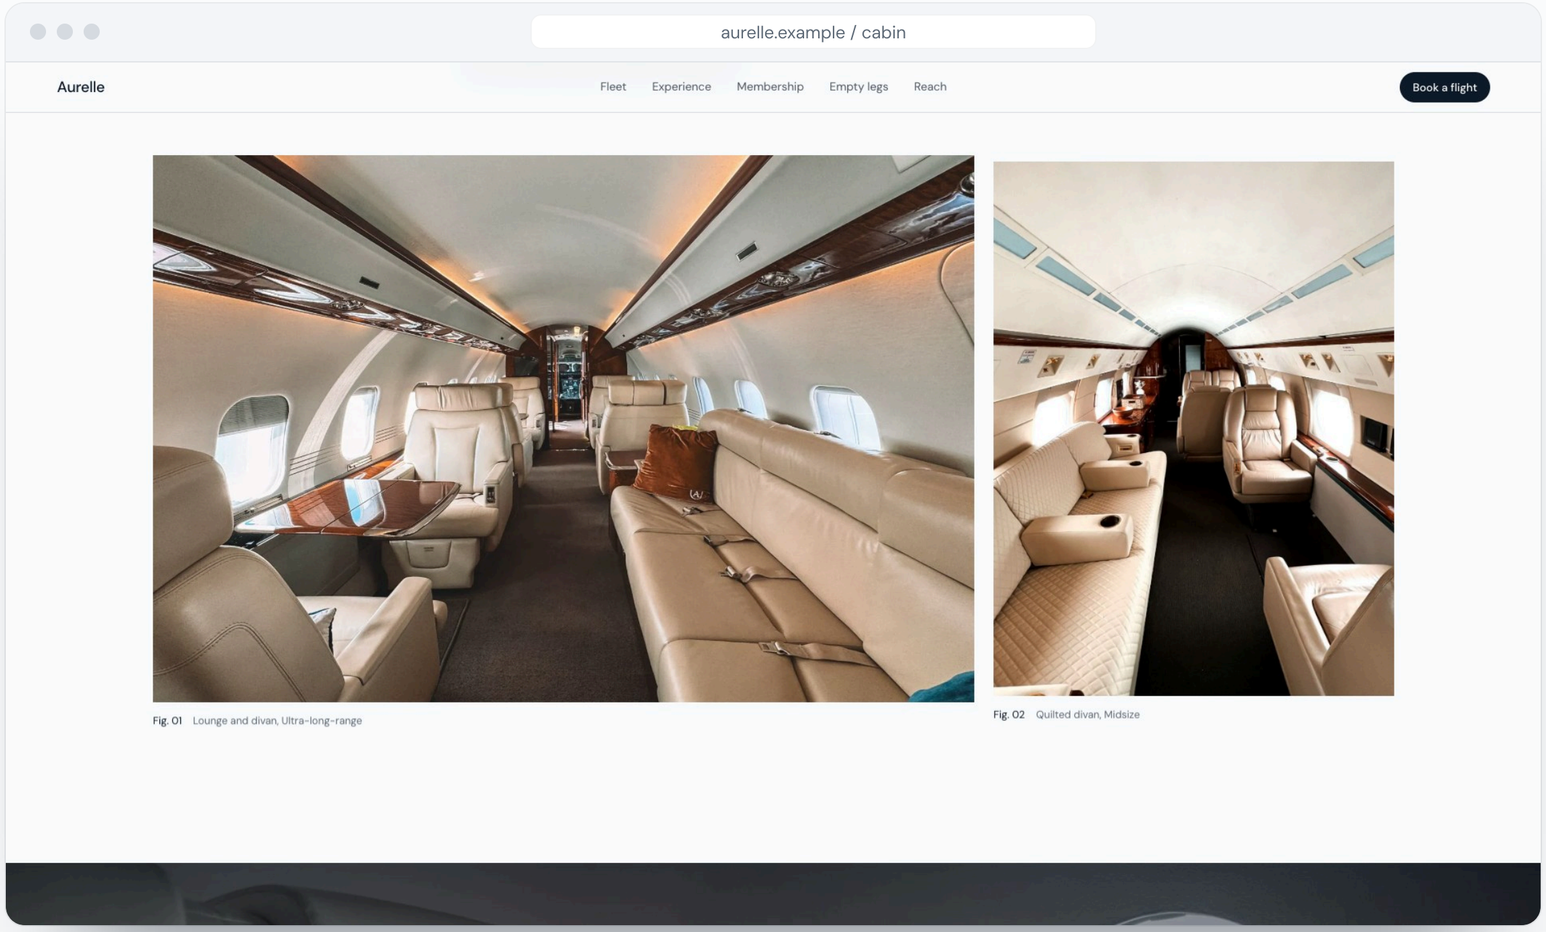
Pearl shader

Black livery remapped to white, silver and graphite



(6.4) The cabin

A room that happens to fly. Three layers of parallax.



01 Each frame opens from an inset crop as it enters

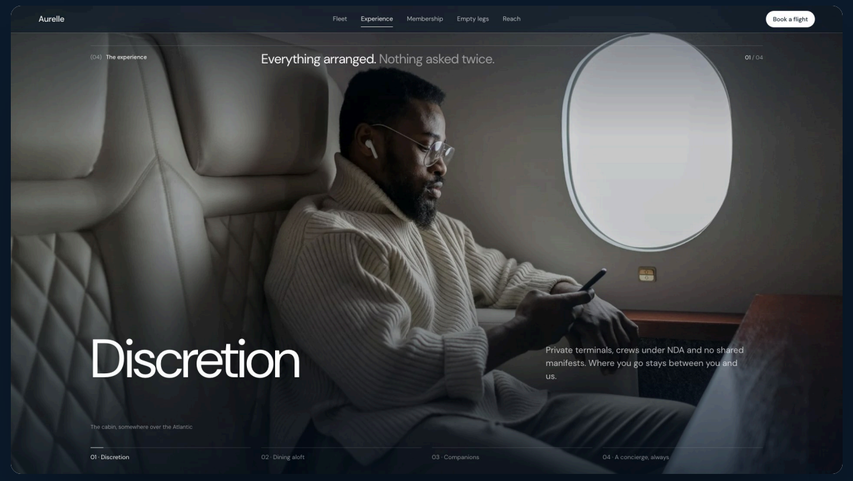
02 The photo drifts ±9% inside its frame

03 The tall frame rises faster than the wide one

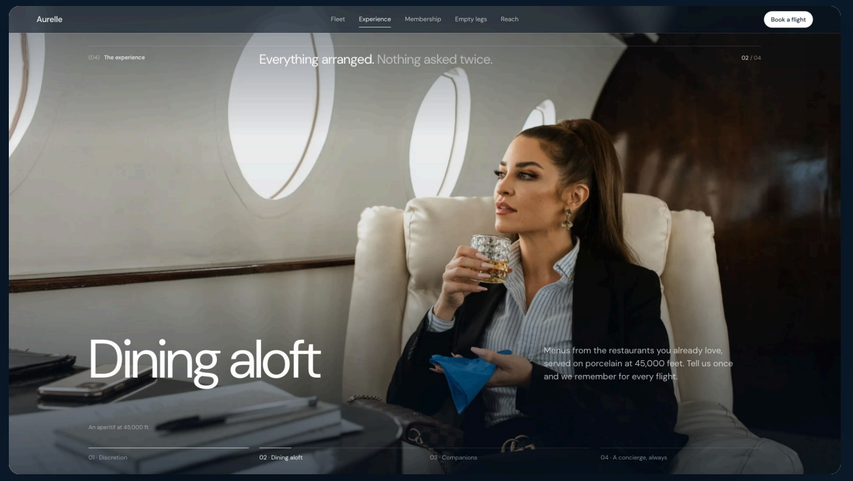
04 Halved on phones, off with reduced motion

(6.5) Experience

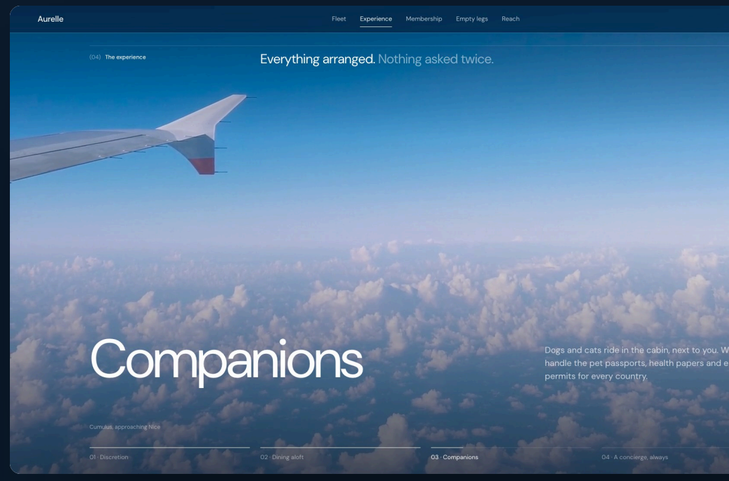
Four chapters, pinned. Each film wipes up over the last.



01 Discretion



02 Dining aloft



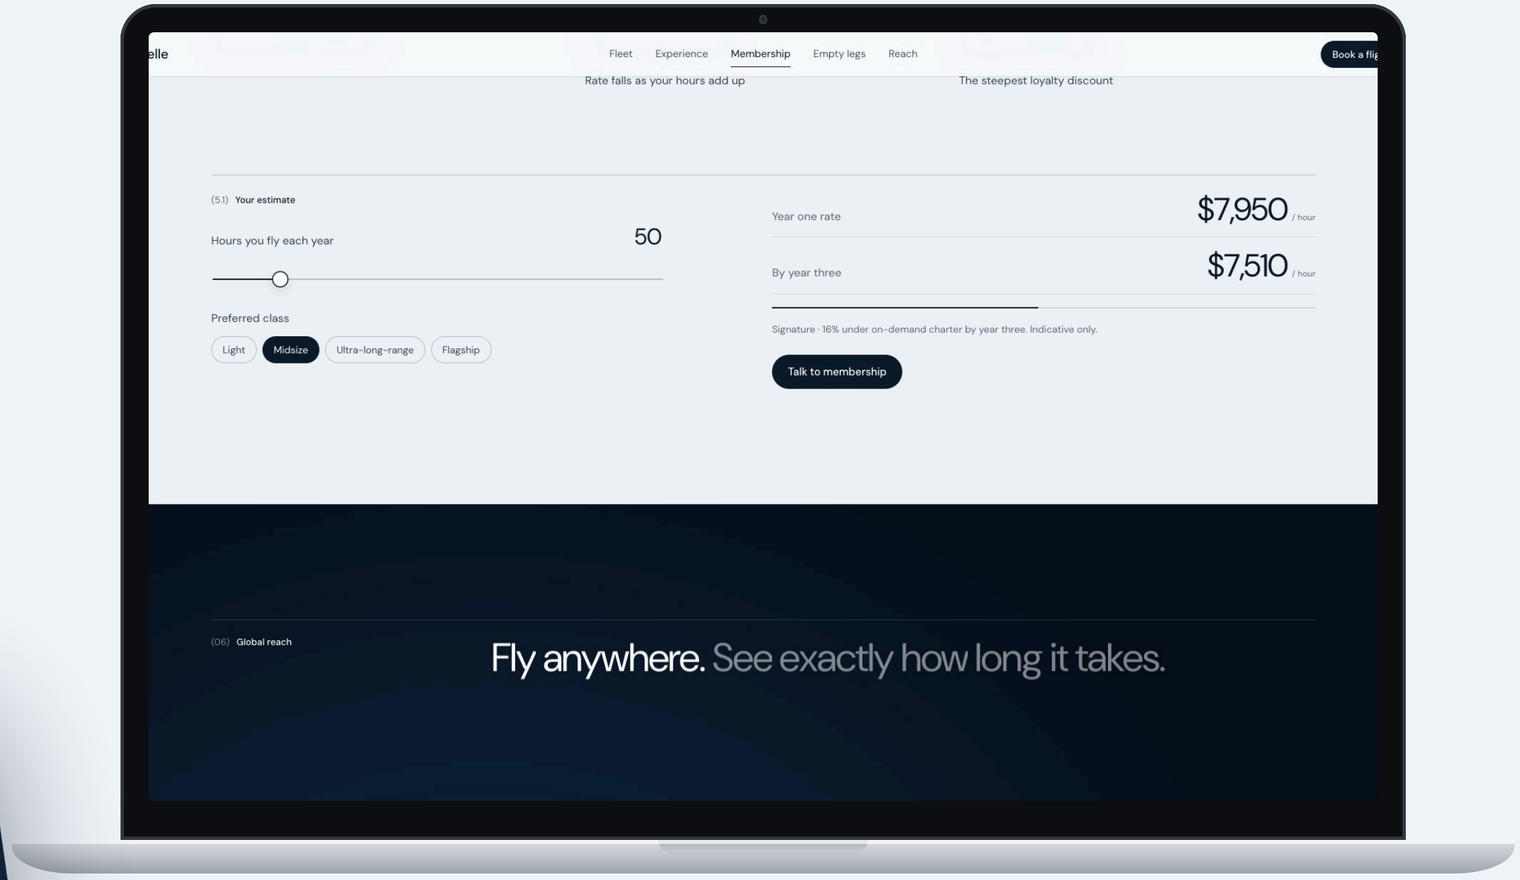
03 Companions

Inside first, then the sky. The type changes as the wipe passes halfway; the progress tabs double as navigation.

(6.6) Membership

Loyalty you can see get cheaper.

Three tiers as ruled columns, not SaaS cards. A slider shows year-one and year-three rates moving apart as hours rise. The tier becomes a card you can hold.



(6.7) Global reach

1 NASA Black Marble, public domain

3 Light trail travels the great circle

From

New York · TEB

To

London · FAB

Distance	Flight time	Suggested
5,530 km	6h 34m	Ultra-long-range

Continue to booking

Great-circle distance, typical cruise speed plus taxi and climb. Your concierge confirms exact times.

2 Atmosphere glow at the limb

4 Distance, time and aircraft, instantly

(6.8) Empty legs

The only place price is shown openly.

A departure board with split-flap codes on desktop; on phones each flight becomes a card with a full-width Reserve button.

(6.9) Booking

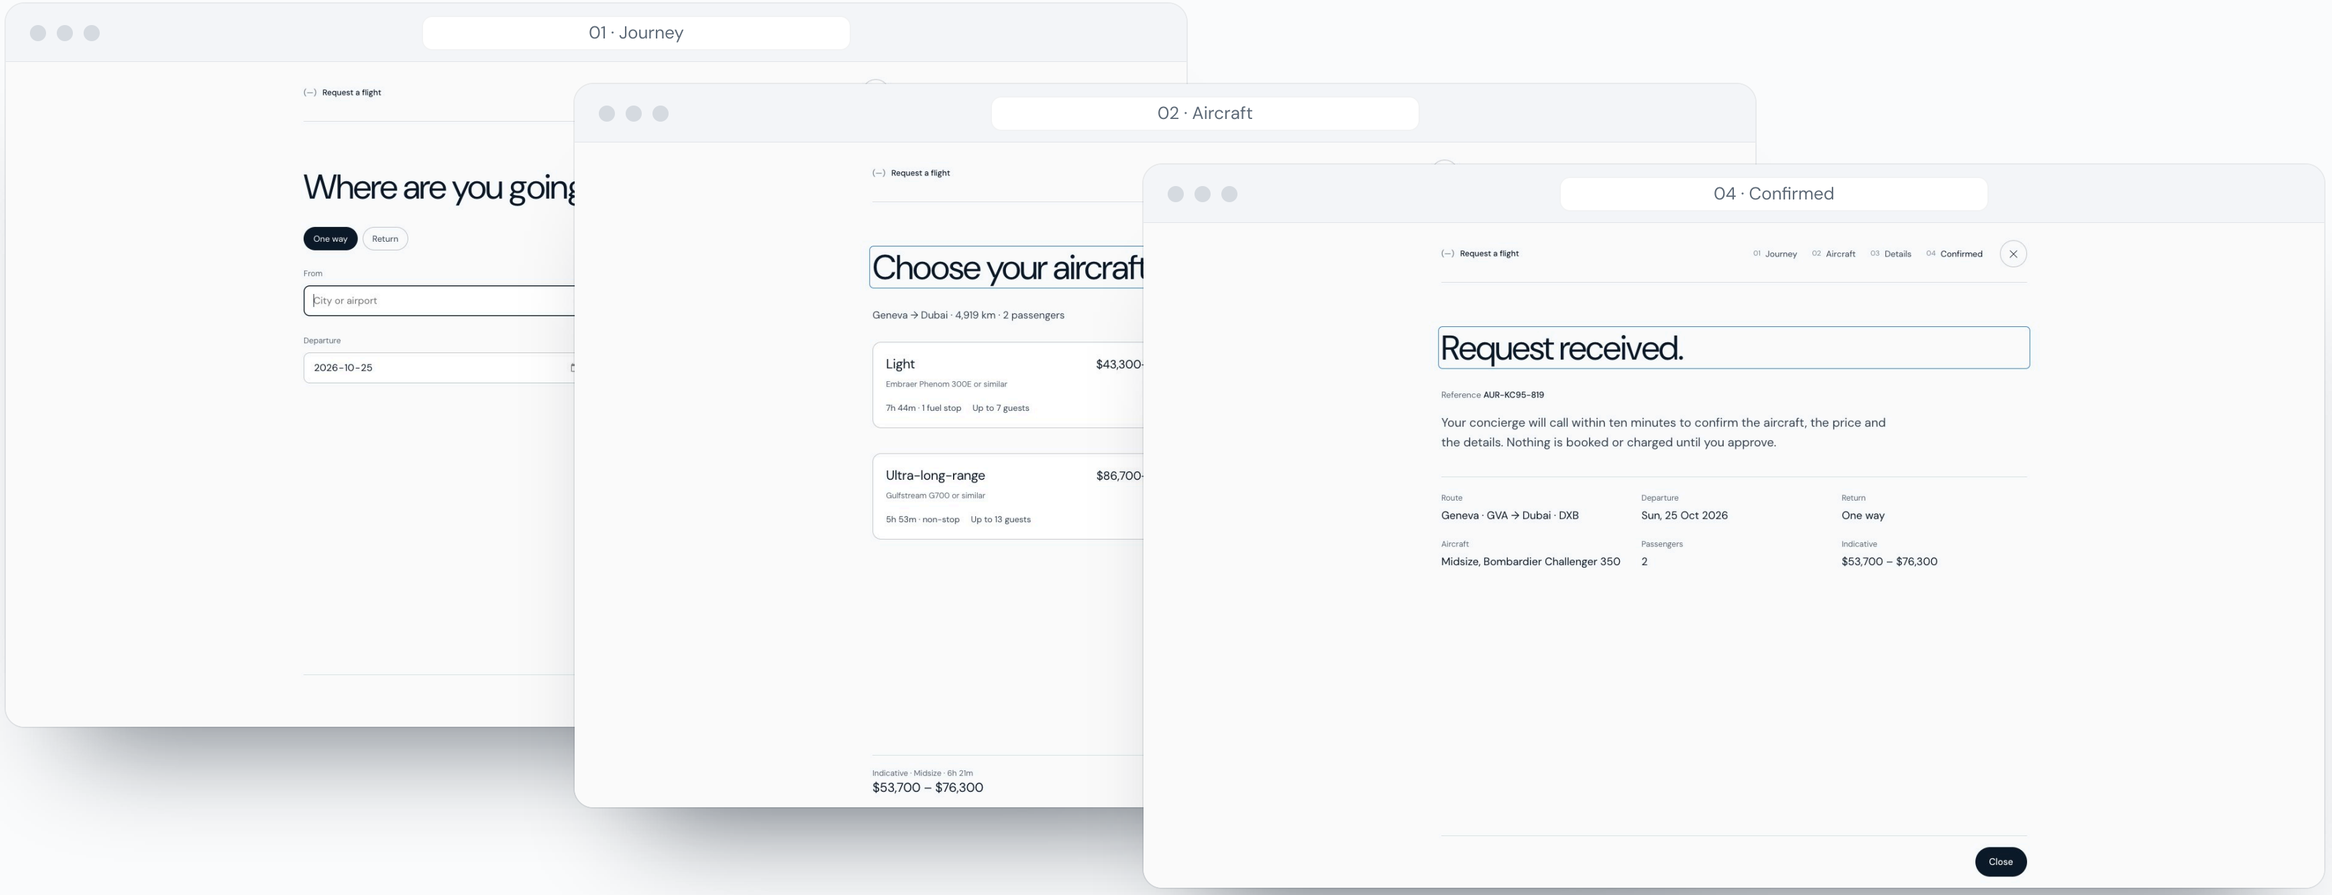
60 s

Four steps. No account. A human calls back.



(6.10) Aircraft pages

See the cabin before you fly in it.

One page per class: specification, real interiors, an annotated floor plan and typical routes, each one bookable.

(6.11) Footer

The last moment of intent.

01 Concierge first: the phone number is the biggest thing

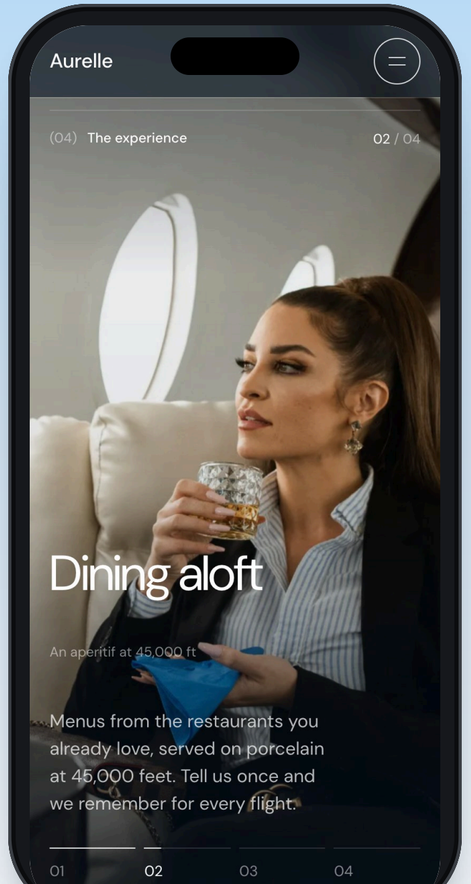
02 Fly · Company · Support, every link real

03 Empty-leg alerts for the not-yet-ready

04 Four bases with live local times

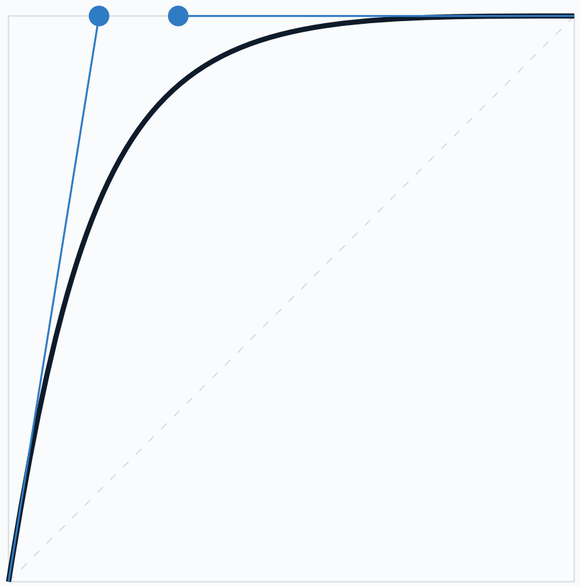
(6.12) Phone

Designed for the phone in the principal's hand, not shrunk for it.



(07) Motion · Easing & timing

Buttery, because it is restrained. One curve, three speeds.



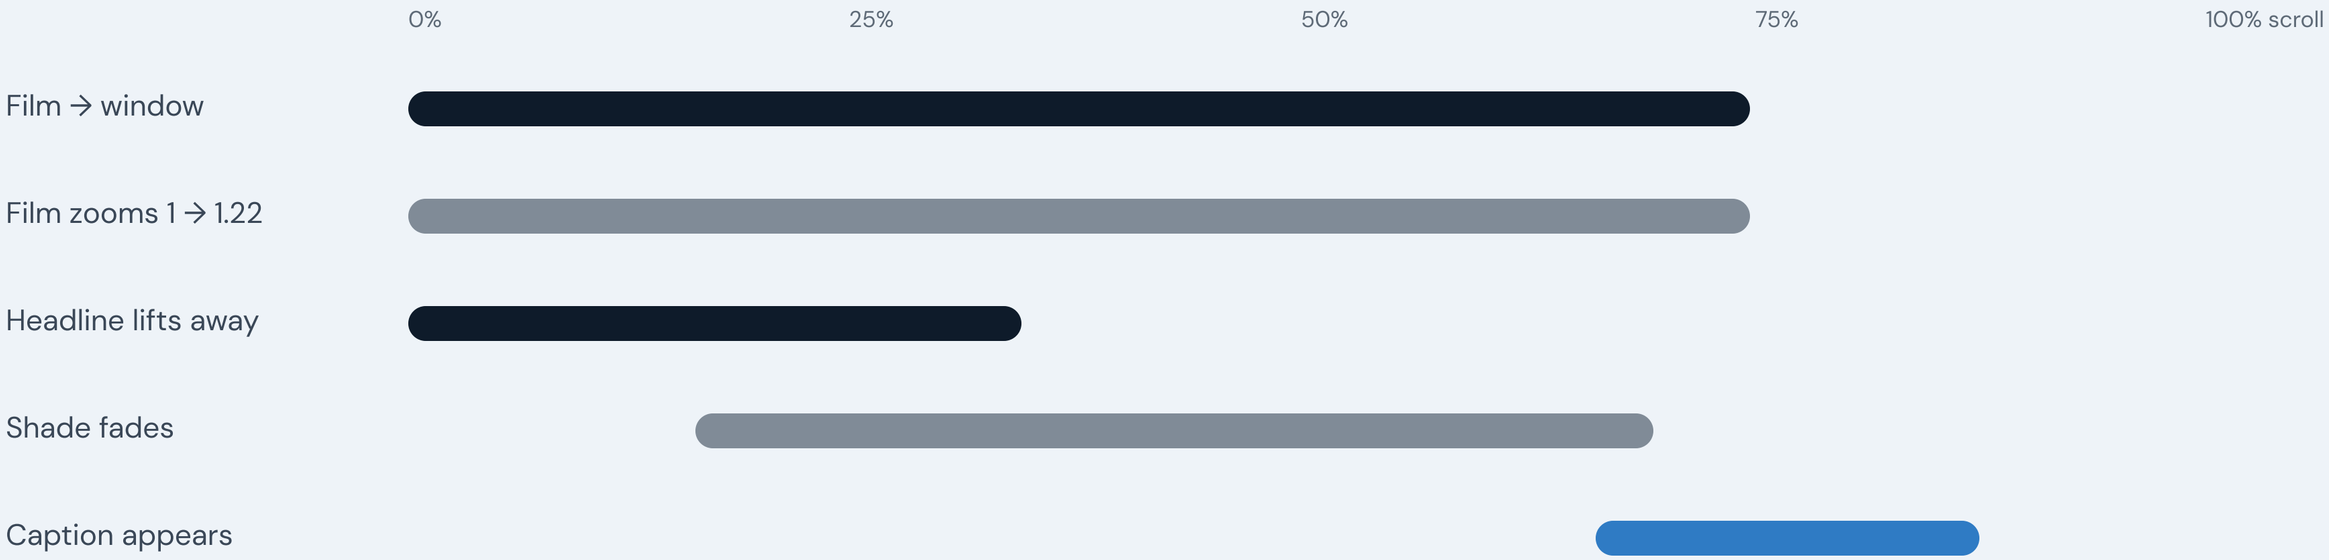
cubic-bezier(.16, 1, .3, 1)

Expo out: fast start, long gentle settle

Moment	Duration	Driver
Buttons, links, nav state	0.3–0.6 s	Time
Reveals, split headlines	1.0–1.05 s	Time, once
Intro: loader → film → headline	2.9 s	Time
Hero → window, fleet, chapters	Scroll	Scrubbed, Lenis
Cabin parallax	Scroll	Three layers
Reduced motion	0	Still compositions

(07) Choreography

The hero, as a score.



(08) Chapter

Brand in the world

The same quiet voice, off the website: social, membership, travel and the street.

(8.1) Voice

Write like a captain: calm, exact, brief.

We say

Wheels up 09:40.

A person answers in ten minutes.

From $9,800. Indicative.

We never say

~~Experience unparalleled luxury!~~

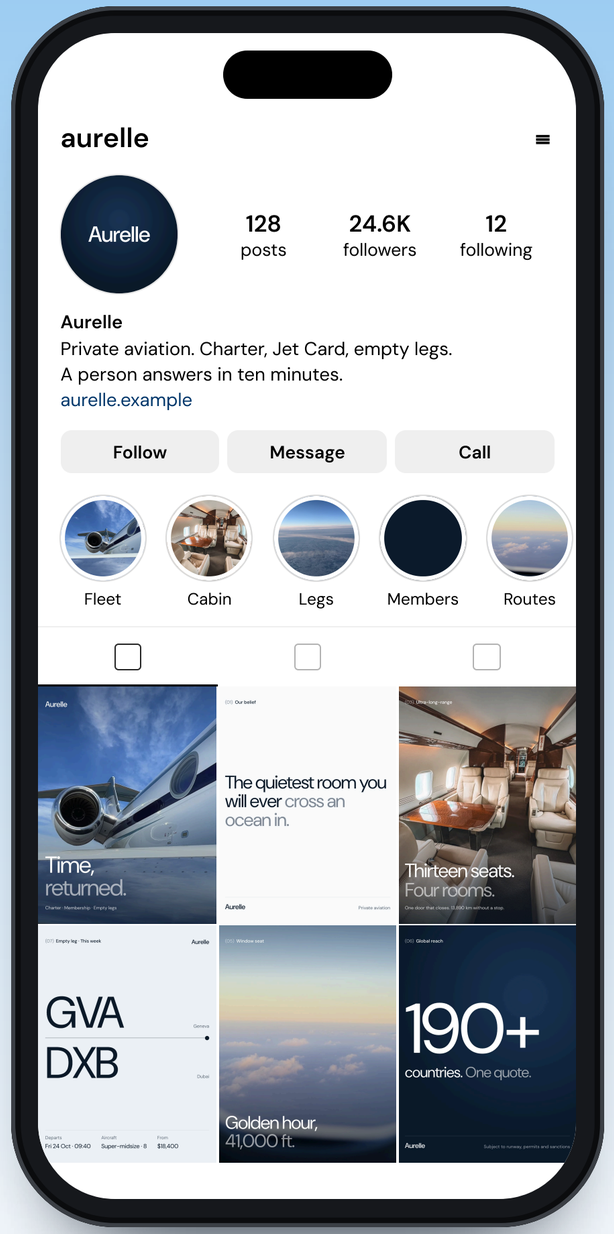
~~World-class, best-in-class service~~

~~Fly anywhere, anytime~~

(8.2) Instagram

A feed that reads like a magazine.

Photo, type, photo. Every post leads with one sentence and a grey second line, exactly like the website. Highlights mirror the main navigation.



Profile picture Wordmark, circle-safe · 1080 px

(8.3) Feed

Nine posts, one rhythm.

Footage, cabin, a route, a number. Light and navy alternate so the grid never sits in one tone.

Format

1080 × 1350, safe for the 3 : 4 grid crop

(8.4) Posts

Moment, offer, membership: the three post types that carry the calendar.

(8.5) Stories

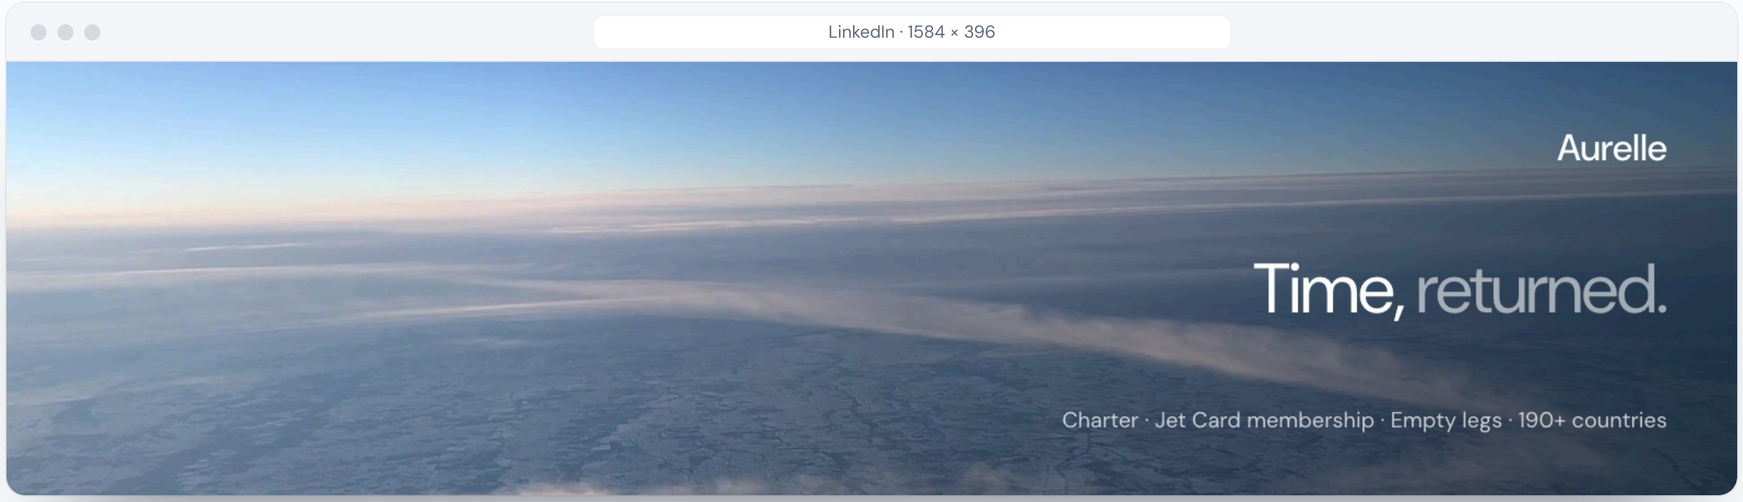
Alerts that feel like a note from a friend.

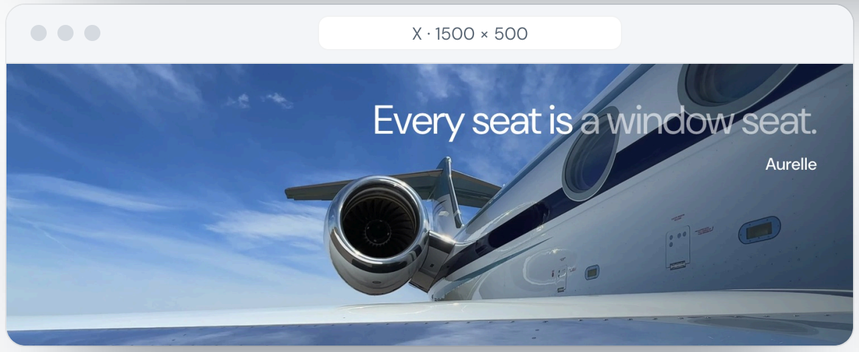
Empty legs as they appear, the 60-second booking, one cabin at a time. One action each.

(8.6) Covers

Headers for every profile.

Text sits right, clear of the profile picture that LinkedIn and X place on the left.





(8.7) Jet Card

Membership you can hold.

Pearl, navy and graphite for 25, 50 and 100+ hours. Brushed finish, no chip, no logo: the name and the hours.

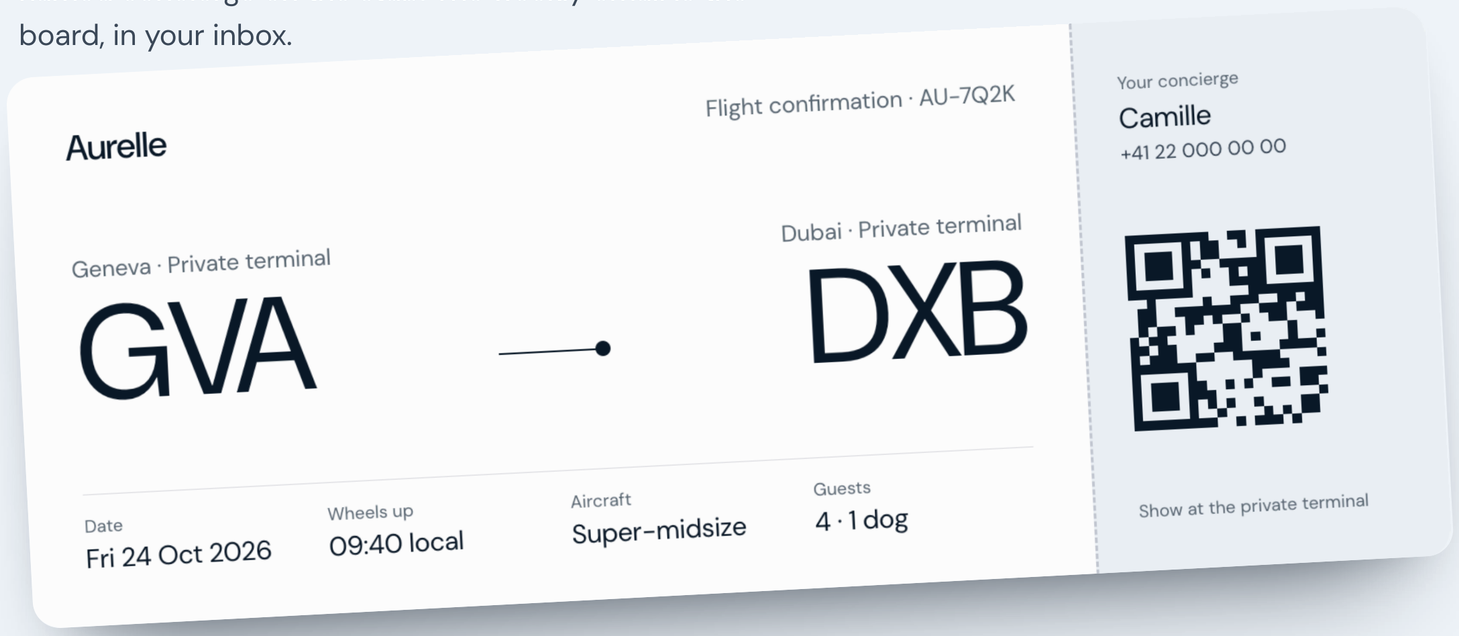
85.6 × 54 mm

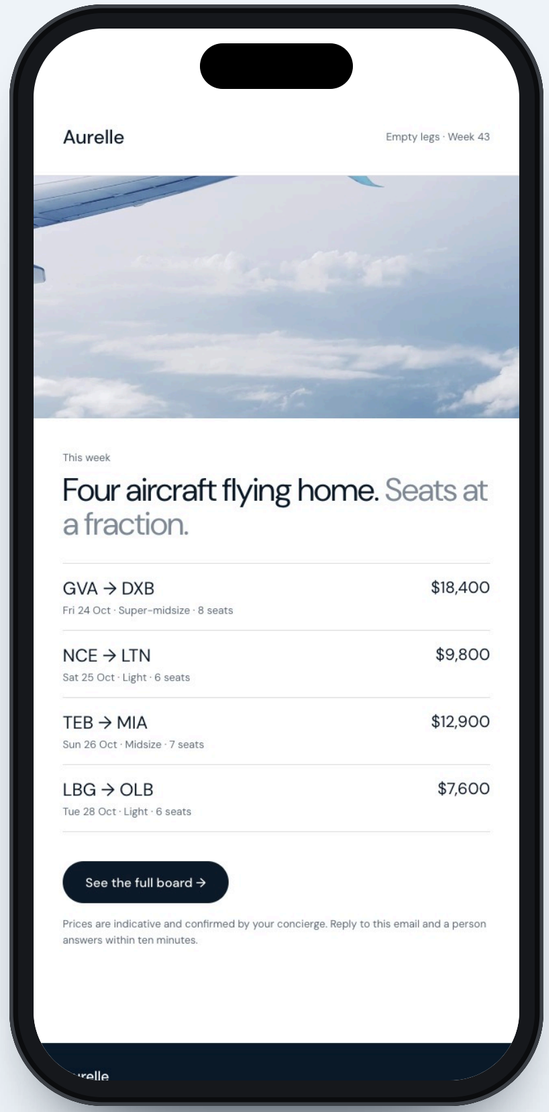
Not a payment card · printed foil wordmark

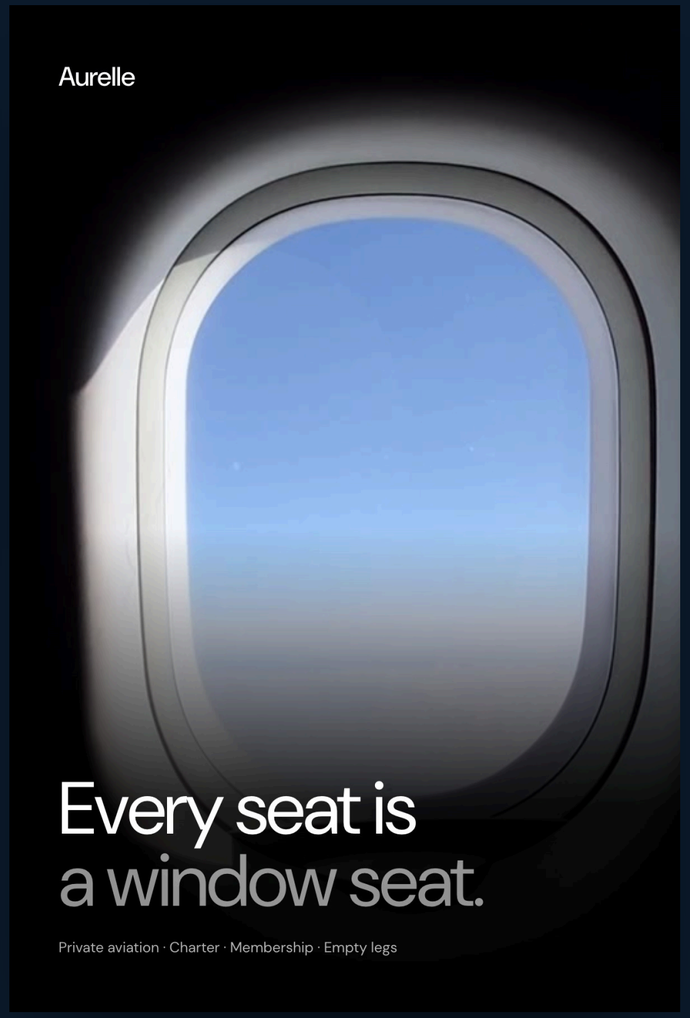
(8.8) After booking

The quote becomes a confirmation.

The same codes and rules as the empty-legs board. A named concierge on the stub. The weekly email is the board, in your inbox.







(8.9) Out of home

Where the clients wait: private terminals, business districts, airport lounges.

Billboard 3 : 1 · Lightbox 2 : 3 · one sentence, one image, the name

(9.1) QA & performance

18
Issues found and fixed across two audits

30
Page × screen-size combinations checked

0
Console errors, overflow or broken links at sign-off

97%
Smaller 3D and video after optimisation

Found	Fixed
Grey headings at 2.0:1	3.1–3.4:1; labels 5.3:1
Tap targets of 23 px on phones	Every control ≥ 44 px
Eight footer links led nowhere	Real destinations, all pages
Outline skipped heading levels	One H1; H2 sections; H3 items

(9.2) What success looks like

Targets for launch, measured from week one.

35%

Quote completion

90 s

Engaged time on the homepage

60

Frames a second on recent phones

AA

Contrast and target sizes

Time, returned.

Next: real operator content and legal review, CRM for booking and alerts, then Arabic, Chinese and French.

Credits Footage and cabin photography: Pexels · Earth at night: NASA · 3D: KarimFatatry, pmglobalmarketinginfo1 (CC BY 4.0) · Concept project, not a real operator